A woman of simplicity, sincerity and common-sense.

A thinker and a worker; imaginative, good at forming plans, and uncommonly tenacious of her ideas and purposes; with the mental flexibility, courage and optimism of youth, a big capacity for happiness and affection, and the spirit of romance strong in her. A mixture of simplicity, sincerity and common-sense, with latent artistic ability, which should be developed, fostered and put to practical purpose.

The above is a Delineation of a reader's character from her handwriting. See others in the Weekly Irish Times

MINORCAS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

There are a number of breeds, really very good, not so well known now, though most of them are old breeds, and have been kept in days gone by. We often wish some of them would take the place of those which are so popular, as change of breed is often a good thing, and crossing produces great vitality. Minorcas were at one time the most popular breed in Ireland, especially with back-yarders and small-holders. For numbers of eggs of immense size there was no breed to beat them. They are non-sitters, so that they are not troublesome as broodies, and they are fairly good table birds, and in this way much superior to the Leghorn. For crossing to produce good layers there is nothing better than a Minorca cock. Since being relegated to the back ground, it is now difficult to get a strain up to the old laying standard.

MULCHING ROSES.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

Newly-planted Roses, from which the spell of solar heat is rapidly evaporating soil moisture, will be the better for a light manure mulching, avoiding a heavy dressing such as we have seen, where a thick plaster of fresh cow manure seals up the soil. With all Roses, how long planted, a manure mulching is now desirable, and occasional lightening up and turning should not be overlooked. With a Rose bed or border in view of, or possibly close up to, the windows, the farmyard look of manure, if found objectionable, can be removed by a sprinkling over of soil. Basal buds, now becoming prominent and promising clean growth and happy times ahead, need not be smothered under the operation of mulching. With active growth, greenfly is certain to cause trouble if not taken in time by spraying with an antidote.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

WAR ON THE "RACKETEER."

Behind the Green Lights. By Captain Cornelius W. Willemse. London: Long. 16/- net.

CAPTAIN WILLEMSE'S book throws a grim light on the great and incessant struggle between the forces of law and order and the criminal elements of the larger American cities. For twenty-five years the author has been a member of the New York Police Force, and has worked his way up from the bottom. All his life he has been thrown in contact with the law-breakers, and understands them and their methods far better than most police chiefs. His activities have earned him the soubriquet of "The Gang Buster," and those who read his book will see how just and well-earned is this nickname.

Captain Willemse has seen the gangster evolve from his lowly sneak-thief station to the wealthy and influential "racketeer" of the present day, who may control thousands of men indirectly, and, by the help of his millions, in addition to the numerous legal loopholes of the American legal system, is rendered an almost impregnable enemy of society. These formidable Al Capones recognise Captain Willemse as their principal enemy, and he has done battle with them on their own ground and has defeated them utterly. The cases of "Kid" Dropper, Little Augie and Tom Flanagan, which penetrated even to the European papers, were engineered by Captain Willemse's skill and knowledge.

He discusses also many things of importance—the failure of American law to protect its citizens, the great and ever-increasing menace of the "racketeer" and gunman, and numerous improvements and innovations that he would like to see made in the force to which he belongs. His knowledge of the gangsters enables him to write many bitter and terrible things about them and their degraded, fear-haunted lives—even in print he deals a telling blow to them. His experiences are many and widespread, and range from murders pure and simple to strange, abnormal crimes. He is particularly annoyed at the idea that the policeman is regarded by many with suspicion and fear; for, as he points out, the law-abiding citizen has no better friend, and knowledge of this fact would save many lost or strayed children from a dreadful fate. In view of the "third degree" scandals that crop up from time to time, Captain Willemse's views on the subject are particularly interesting. As he shows, the term is a very elastic one, and may mean anything from a brutal, but evidently necessary, "beating up" to the subtlest methods of mental torture.

A HOBO IN HUNGARY.

Raggle-taggle. By Walter Starkie. London: Murray. 10/6 net.

DR. STARKIE'S book is the narrative of a journey made one hot summer through Hungary and Transylvania. Dressed in an old suit borrowed from his Italian gardener, with a violin on his arm and a rucksack on his back, the writer tramped through the endless cornfields and steppes of Central Europe, making friends and earning his dinners by means of his fiddling, sleeping in gipsy lodging-houses or Hungarian tanyas, dodging as far as was possible the haunts of respectability and civilisation. It is an outstanding book, which will entertain the reader not only with its revelation of gipsy life, but also because of the author's attitude. Dr. Starkie has none of that romantic arrogance which literary vagabonds often assume towards less enterprising bourgeois. His gipsies, he admits, when they were not spell-bound by his music, were not always conscious of "blood-brotherhood." They often tried to rob him, and once or twice to kill him. He does not claim to be a Lawrence among the Arabs, or a Mowgli among the jungle-folk.

His way often lay not so far off the well-trodden tourist tracks; yet few tourists can ever have come across a tithe of what Dr. Starkie saw and experienced. In his description of these events lie his great skill and charm. On the Amazon we could all be adventurers, but in Central Europe, if we are used to comforts and have the means to secure them, the life of a wanderer must be a continual struggle with temptation. Though our pockets are empty of lei and filler and pengö, Croats and Magyars and Ruthenes have all, no doubt, the signatures of our bank managers. Dr. Starkie records his adventures with such enthusiasm, and his lapses into respectability with such faithfulness, that we know him to be a genuine vagabond.

A BOXER'S MEMOIRS.

A Man Must Fight. By Gene Tunney. London: Cape. 7/6 net.

MR. GENE TUNNEY, who retired at the height of his career, after his attainment of the world heavy-weight championship, presents us with fine reading in "A Man Must Fight." To read the book is almost to be present at the thrilling series of bouts culminating in the historic fight with Dempsey at Soldiers' Field. It ought to be a work of permanent interest. Only one criticism can be made. As Mr. Bernard Shaw says in his letter to Mr. Gene Tunney concerning the book, "One fight is very like another." That is so. Mr. Tunney makes the mistake of giving too much detail about a great many little fights, while the reader feels that he would prefer to learn how Mr. Tunney felt after some of his more important victories. Otherwise his book is vivid and well written, and has all the marks of authenticity.

DECORATIVE ART.

Decorative Art, 1933. "The Studio" Year Book. London: "The Studio." 7/6 net.

MODERN design in building is a subject in which all the world is interested to-day. Those who were most vehement in their opposition to the modern style of architecture have had time to learn that individual tastes, both in building and furnishing, are catered for to-day as never before. Architecture, interior decoration, lighting, textiles, furniture, pottery, metal and glass, as treated by designers of to-day, can be seen in a very large number of photographic reproductions in "Decorative Art—The Studio Year Book for 1933." Those who contemplate building or furnishing, or those who are not just now in a position to do either, but would like to learn on what lines modern designers are working to-day, will view these illustrations with interest. Six excellently reproduced supplements which show the work of well-known designers include "Wall Decorations in a Flat," "Room in a House in Hampstead," "Painted Glass Panel," and a "Bedroom Study." It is a great advantage to see these designs in their natural colours.

The revolt against unnecessary and meaningless ornamentation caused, as might have been expected, a great jump in the opposite direction. It is little wonder that many people viewed photographs of apartments looking like prison cells with some consternation. The present object of modern design is to turn articles of daily use into a thing of beauty. Even a glance through "Decorative Art" will convince one that house-building and home-furnishing are to-day viewed in the light of a pleasurable adventure. A one-room flat for a business woman or bachelor, illustrated on page 56, shows that modern designers do not despise clients of modest means.

THE PIANOFORTE.

The Pianoforte. By Rosamund E. M. Harding. London: The Cambridge University Press. 50/- net.

IT is a far cry from the harpsichord, with which Sophia beguiled the irascible Squire Western with "Old Sir Simon," to the Erard and Pleyel "grands" upon which the new school of virtuosi, headed by Liszt and Thalberg, bedazzled the audiences of the early fifties of the last century. Within this period the pianoforte, to group the various instruments under a convenient heading, developed from a tinkling little tune-maker into something resembling the sonorous concert grand of the modern recitals. Dr. Harding has made an intensive study of the instruments of this transition stage. She has examined the various patents in England, America, France, Germany and Italy, and the result is a comprehensive work on pianoforte evolution, of importance and authority. In order to make the book not too technical the author has divided her material into two parts. The first deals with the origin of the instrument, in an attempt to make the harpsichord expressive; the second traces is subsequent development from little more than an altered harpsichord to the instrument recognised as a pianoforte by Beethoven and the great artists of his period. There is a section on the piano as a chamber orchestra. The work is rendered more readable to amateurs by its reserving of the technical details to the end. The influence of the different schools of pianists is shown—of the bravura on the one hand, and the classical, as represented by Beethoven, on the other. There are numerous plates and illustrations, some of which are of extreme beauty.

THE STORY ATLAS.

The Story Atlas. Edited by John Stirling. London: Nicholson and Watson. 31/6 net.

IT is not very easy to determine the purpose of Mr. John Stirling's "Story Atlas." The sketchiness of its letter-press suggests that it is intended for children, but the magnificent get-up implies a wider public. The "Story Atlas," in brief, is a summary of the world's history and achievements, and of the process of civilisation from the time when the great star brushed past the sun and drew forth the stream of matter which eventually became the planets, to the present day. In this tale of process it includes long and gorgeously-illustrated sections on the animals of the world, on industries, and on the government of the modern States. The most interesting feature, however, consists in the maps, which, based on a global plan, afford a startlingly novel and accurate view of the world and its great divisions. In addition, there are many hundreds of admirable photographs; and the letter-press, though inevitably short, is guaranteed as to quality by the distinguished names which are responsible for it.

AN ECONOMIST'S ESSAYS.

Essays in Biography. By John Maynard Keynes. London: Macmillan. 7/6 net.

SINCE Mr. J. M. Keynes is one of the world's leading economists, and, as such, very intimately associated with present-day politics, it is natural that his "Essays in Biography" should deal with economists and with the economic aspects of the doings of statesmen and politicians. In this book, much of which has been published before in different forms, will be found all that pungency and charming pugnacity (charming because not even the most-mauled victim could possibly suspect malicious intention) which characterised "The Economic Consequence of the Peace." Here will be found a portion of that splendid book which a "certain compunction" prevented him from publishing at the time, and it is to this portrait and analysis of Mr. Lloyd George, which he still has some compunction about publishing, that the reader will probably turn first. The reward will be great: nowhere has the "Welsh Wizard" been so delightfully rendered on paper in all his gambolling and in all his magnificence. The portrait may be thought a little malevolent, but the sitter is said to think highly of it.

Other essays deal in the same spirit with "The Council of Four," "Mr. Bonar Law," "Lord Oxford," "Edwin Montague," "Winston Churchill," and "Trotsky on England." Perhaps, the most delightful and most informative essay in the volume is that on "The Villiers Connection," which is a masterpiece of condensed learning. In the second part of the book, which relates to the lives of economists, is a splendid essay, "Robert Malthus: the First of the Cambridge Economists," as well as that filial offering which Mr. Keynes made to the "Memorials of Alfred Marshall," who might be styled "The Maker of Cambridge Economics." An Irish interest is given to the volume by the essay on F. Y. Edgeworth, who intended to retire and end his days in peace at Edgeworthstown, though his untiring work in mathematical economics probably frustrated that intention. The essay on that very remarkable boy, F. P. Ramsey, completes a fascinating book.

CONFLICT.

Science and Religion: a Symposium. London: Gerald Howe. 1/- net.

THOSE who heard the series of talks on science and religion broadcast about two years ago will be glad to have the complete set in print. In this book five prominent men of science, five famous Churchmen, and two eminent philosophers have given their personal views on the relation of science to religion, and have made characteristic and stimulating contributions to a controversial subject. This cheap edition can be recommended thoroughly.

RECENT FICTION.

The Street of the Sandalmakers. By Nis Petersen. Translated by Elizabeth Sprigge and Claude Napier. Lovat Dickson. 7/6 net.

Doctor Gion. By Hans Carossa. Secker. 7/6 net.

THE international reputation of M. Nis Petersen's book can be judged by the fact that English is the tenth language in which it has appeared. It is a novel in the grand manner, a worthy partner in the triumvirate of novels of ancient Rome, which includes "The Last Days of Pompeii" and "Quo Vadis." The scene is laid in the time of Marcus Aurelius, when a great plague that decimated Rome entered with the returning Eastern Army—the time, too, when the faith of Christ was beginning to strengthen its hold upon others than the very poor. "The Street of the Sandalmakers" is the story of one Marcellus, son of the chief of the secret police, and of his love for the Christian Cæcilia, with the part played in their lives by Jon, son, though nobody knows it, of Marcellus. The great virtue of M. Petersen's work, however, is that he has delved into the heart of Rome, that great and swirling city, and shown its life as it must have been lived. The speech of the people is in striking contrast to the stiffly formalised utterance of Lytton's or Sienkiwictz's characters. The dust and squalor and smell of the narrow, packed streets of tenement houses are as clear almost as literature can make them. M. Petersen's achievement is really notable; and his admirably translated picture of the fatal legions bearing upon Rome must endure as one of the high flights of modern narrative.

* * * * *

The scene of "Doctor Gion" is set in Munich and the surrounding hill country during the early post-war years, when hardships and privation had left their traces in emaciated bodies and unstrung nerves. The principal theme of the story is the bravery of Emergence, a poor peasant girl suffering from loss of memory brought on by malnutrition and overwork, who willingly sacrifices everything, even her own life, for the sake of her unborn child. It tells how this bravery has a vital and healing influence on Cynthia, the gifted, but neurotic, young sculptress, with whom Dr. Gion is in love. There are many scenes of simple, poignant pathos, and the Doctor is an exceedingly well-drawn figure. For all the misery and human ill with which he is brought in contact by his profession, he never loses his belief that the balance of good outweighs the evil, and is ever ready to extend a helping hand to those in trouble.

All Souls' Night. A Book of Stories. By Hugh Walpole. Macmillan. 7/6.

Travail of Gold. By E. F. Benson. Hodder and Stoughton. 7/6 net.

READERS to whom Mr. Hugh Walpole is known only as an author who needs the vast canvas for his effects will be pleasantly surprised by a volume of his short stories, but those who know "The Silver Thorn" will be delighted to have this additional volume of masterpieces in little. Like the late John Galsworthy, whose place as the chronicler of social England he may be said to have taken, Mr. Walpole uses characters from his longer novels in his short stories; and in this volume many readers will be delighted to encounter Jeremy and his dog, and some of the people from "The Cathedral," as well as Mrs. Comber from "Mr. Perrin and Mr. Traill" and a member of the Herries tribe. The best of the new stories, however, are those which have a slightly supernatural content, and such stories as "The Whistle," "The Silver Mask," "The Staircase," "A Carnation for an Old Man," and "The Little Ghost" are certainly masterly. It is said that Mr. Walpole himself thinks "The Whistle" his best short story, but one reader would support more strongly "The Silver Mask." Where there is so much that is excellent, however, the entire volume may be heartily commended.

Mr. E. F. Benson's malicious, caustic satire has won him numerous admirers, but never in his many writings has he given us such witty and apt pen pictures as we find in his latest work, "Travail of Gold," the history of a young playwright, when his first play, beautiful in its ideal, is rejected, and he later becomes successful as a writer of society "sketches" and satire, until he loses his soul and happiness, teems with witty remarks, and his characters, Wee Violet, the Fairy and Bobby Lucas, with their absurd foibles, afford pure joy. This is one of the best books that Mr. Benson has written.

The Great Day. By Georgette Carneal. Constable. 7/6 net.

The Mere Living. By R. Bergson Spiro. Gollancz. 7/6 net.

MISS CARNEAL tells her tale with a power which, as in its horrible last scene, may be too much for the average reader. "The Great Day" is a story, or rather a study, of present-day New York. It centres round the personnel of an evening newspaper, but its orbit includes every form of life in New York—particularly the more revolting forms. "I'd like to live a decent life," says the young man on the last page, "a life that has dignity, sincerity, peace. And I'll do it some day. I'm only twenty-seven. It's a question of time, that's all." So they all say; but Miss Carneal shows how the vicious and abominable machine holds them fast. The power of her writing is undeniable, but its attractiveness is very dubious.

Miss Spiro is a disciple of Mr. James Joyce in so far as she tries to present the stream of consciousness of her family unit—father, mother, daughter, son. Yet her main object is not the all complete revelation of these human minds. She has set herself in "The Mere Living" a very definite task; a verbal representation of the physical; a picture in which every object, animate or inanimate, is depicted in terms of flesh and blood.

It is no exaggeration to say that there is hardly a noun in this story without at least one and, at times, half-a-dozen hyphenated adjectives, all deliberately chosen for their sensuous appeal. One may quibble with Miss Spiro that such "mere living" as she describes would not wring from Robert Browning the cry: "How good is man's life!" Mere living as depicted by Miss Spiro is horrible in its intensity—a nightmare world in which the cutting of a poached egg is apprehended as the gushing forth of red, sticky blood from a raw and gaping fleshy wound. No one, however, can deny Miss Spiro applause for the manner in which she has executed her self-imposed task.

Spies are Abroad. By J. M. Walsh. Collins. 7/6 net.

Death in the Forest. By Neville Brand. The Bodley Head. 7/6 net.

The Boat Race Murder. By R. E. Swartwout. Grayson. 7/6 net.

When the plot of "Spies are Abroad" is revealed as an attempt by criminals to destroy Western civilisation, the reader must have his apprehensions. Fortunately, the story simplifies itself into an attack upon the Suez Canal, and the attempts of Colonel Ormiston, of the Secret Service, to confound the conspirators. His adventures lead him into many troublesome situations, and the story is briskly told. We regretted the death—apparently, quite unnecessary—of the attractive Diana Dearborn half-way through the book, but the feminine interest is kept up in England and the East by the mysterious "Rose of the Dark."

* * * * *

"Death in the Forest" begins with an aeroplane crash in a forest of Central America, and continues with the subsequent startling discovery by one who saw the machine fall that the airman had been stabbed before he lost control. The young Barradynes, who arrive just then to visit their uncle, find themselves involved in kidnappings, in forced marches through the forest, in capture and re-capture by rival parties. Mr. Brand's description of a forest storm is awe-inspiring, and the final scene in the ruins of Carravuaga provides a fitting climax to his rousing tale of adventure.

* * * * *

Mr. R. E. Swartwout, who writes "The Boat Race Murder," was cox of the Cambridge Eight in 1931, from which fact one may assume that his story will contain local colour in abundance, and accurate colour at that. So it turns out. We are introduced formally to a very real crew, which behaves precisely as any crew would behave when confronted with anything so startling as the body of its murdered stroke. There is nothing particularly ingenious about the murder or its solution, but Mr. Swartwout's gift of character-drawing helps him to write a thoroughly entertaining novel.

The Return. By Walter de la Mare. The Black Diamond. By Francis Brett Young. "The Greenleaf Library." Collins. 2/6 apiece.

The "Greenleaf Library" is sure of a hearty welcome from many readers. Seven novels by well-known writers have now appeared in this attractive form. The latest are Mr. Walter de la Mare's beautifully-written tale of occult "possession," "The Return," and "The Black Diamond," Mr. Francis Brett Young's powerful story of country life on the Welsh border. This edition is really excellent value. The paper and print are good, and the general appearance is at least equal to that of the average 7s. 6d. novel.

Cork and Orrery.

Sir William Boyle, K.C.B., the new Commander-in-Chief of the Home Fleet, is a scion of the House of the "Great Earl of Corke." Richard Boyle, in his autobiography, recounted that when he arrived at Dublin in the reign of Elizabeth his only assets were his clothing, some trinkets and £27 in cash, together with learning and experience acquired in foreign parts; "but," he wrote, "it has pleased the Almighty to take me, just as it were, by the hand and lead me into Ireland, where I happily arrived on Mid-Summer Eve, 1588."

Boyle, who was educated at Cambridge and held a minor position in the English Exchequer, found favour with the Court at Whitehall, so that, despite the "annoyances and persecutions" of local authorities, he amassed rapidly a considerable fortune and was created successively: a Knight, Baron Youghal, and Earl of Cork. The Earldom of Orrery was conferred on his third son, whose grandson, the fourth Earl, invented the planetarium (or "Orrery"), an apparatus for demonstrating the sizes, positions and movements of heavenly bodies.

Dublin and Cork.

Richard Boyle's fortunes were enhanced considerably on the death of his first wife—a Limerick lady. Subsequently he married another heiress, by whom he obtained "Preston's Inns" (Inns of Court), together with adjoining property. Here, by the graveyard of St. Marie le Dam (Dame street), where the City Hall now stands, he built his mansion, and named it "Cork House on Cork Hill."

Further afield, the Earl-to-be had acquired vast estates. He purchased at a small price 20,000 acres of Sir Walter Raleigh's lands, together with an adjoining portion of 12,000 acres, in Cork County. His scheme of development there was so rapid that soon he had founded or rebuilt the towns of Youghal, Baltimore, Clonakilty and Bandon (afterwards his family raised Midleton, Castlemartyr, Doneraile and Charleville). From these Cork estates he took his title.

A Record Journey.

In the story of his life, the first Earl of Cork described his voyages to the Kerry coast in the Pilgrim, which he had bought from Sir Walter Raleigh. Probably this was the ship in which he made his record journey across the Channel, when he left Shandon Castle at two o'clock on a morning and supped on the evening of the next day with Sir Robert Cecil in London. The "Great Earl of Corke" was knighted in St. Mary's Abbey, Dublin; he cultivated friendships with the men famous in our city in his time, and to some of them, including Lord Primate Ussher and Sir James Ware, he bequeathed gifts of remembrance.

On the Level.

I am often amused at the quaint ideas and expressions that emanate from the United States. The following is the latest example which has reached me, from a friend who had occasion to travel to Geneva recently. In the course of the railway journey he happened to render some small service to an American who could not speak French. The latter appeared duly grateful, and in the course of conversation my friend learnt that his new acquaintance came from the Middle West. While they were talking, the train passed through a gorge surrounded by some high mountains, and my friend suggested to the American that he must find this kind of scenery a great contrast to the valley of the Mississippi. "I guess you've said it," was the reply. "Our country is all one vast plain; on a clear day we can see a hundred miles is any direction. Yes, sir, ours is a beautiful level land." Glancing for a moment at the majesty of the Alps, he added, as an afterthought: "I reckon this would make a real extensive country, too, if it were rolled out flat."

Belfast's Little Theatre.

The large audiences who have been present at the Belfast Little Theatre Repertory Company's presentation of "Lord Richard in the Pantry" this week are very encouraging, a Northern correspondent tells me. The Duchess of Abercorn attended on Wednesday evening, and was obviously charmed with the performance. This enjoyable little comedy was very ably presented. The part of Lord Richard was taken by Mr. Griffith Knight, who gave a display of his remarkable versatility, and that of the fascinating widow by Miss Doris Richmond, who had a rôle which might have been specially written for her. Miss Kathleen Irwin, who played the cook, gave one of her best performances up to the present—indeed, it was one of the features of the play. Mr. H. B. W. Wilson, as the butler, was also excellent, while Miss Patricia Baines, as the widow's friend, and Mr. N. O'D. Grimshaw, as Lord Richard's friend, deserved special mention.

Rooks and Treetops.

The rooms in which I am lodging (writes a correspondent), overlook a row of beech trees quite thirty feet high, and, as I look out in the morning, the extreme "levelness" of the tree-tops has interested me. It seemed obvious that no one would deliberately climb so high as that just to keep a row of beech trees level. Recently it struck me, however, that the reason might not be far to seek; for I noticed several of the rooks, with which the little copse is crowded, breaking off the topmost twigs to get material for their nests. I asked an expert about this, and he told me that probably the rooks have everything to say to it. Scores of birds, he said, engaged in the same operation season after season, would certainly keep the tops level. In support of this theory he pointed out that the trees, though skimpy down below, are bushy up above. This is exactly what would be the effect of this inexpert pruning, and all goes to prove the power of mere birds to modify the shape of trees.

Easter Holidays.

All Government departments will be closed on Easter Monday, but a skeleton staff will be retained in certain public departments to-day. Officials who attend for duty on Saturday are, I am told, granted Easter Tuesday as a day in lieu—not at all a bad exchange.

In the good old days before the Treaty (writes a civil servant) it was quite a common occurrence for some departments to close down for a week or more—that is, from Holy Thursday until Easter Monday week—but these days passed with the passing of the British régime. Since 1922 there has been a litany of new regulations in regard to the civil servant, all designed to restrict his former privileges and to make his official life less happy than it was. A longer working day, strict punctuality, no time grace in the mornings, shorter holidays, fewer public holidays and less pay—all have combined to take the gilt off the civil servant's gingerbread. Even administrative chiefs must now be in their offices not later than 10 a.m.

TO-DAY.

DUBLIN: Music and Variety, 8 to 10.30.

BELFAST: Military Band Concert, 7.45.

NATIONAL: Stars in their Courses, James Agate's presentation, 9.20.

SCOTTISH REGIONAL: Glasgow Musical Festival Prize-winners' Concert, 8.0.

ROME: Relay from a Theatre, 8.45.

RADIO PARIS: Recital of Schumann Pianoforte Music, 8.45.

NORTH ITALIAN: Operetta, 8.45.

THE term military band concert, used in the Belfast programme, is an inadequate description, in view of the excellent programme arranged for the concert in the Ulster Hall to-night. Besides one of the best military bands now stationed in the North, the performers will include Joseph Farrington, a prominent English oratorio bass, and H. F. Ellingford, city organist, of Liverpool. Mr. Ellingford, who, before his appointment to take charge of the organ of St. George's Hall, Liverpool, was organist of St. George's Church, Belfast, will be heartily welcomed on one of his rare visits to the Northern City. His programme of organ pieces to-night will include the great Fantasia and Fugue in G minor of Bach.

SONGS OF VAUGHAN WILLIAMS.

The favourite station of Dublin listeners, the B.B.C. North Regional has a very unenterprising programme to offer to-night. If we turn to the Scottish Regional Station, we may hear performances by prize-winners (choirs, as well as soloists) in the Glasgow Musical Festival, a competitive festival akin to our Feis Ceoil; and, after that, a chamber music concert, in the course of which Herbert Heyner will sing the "Five Mystical Songs" of Vaughan Williams, with the proper accompaniment of string quartet and pianoforte. Many critics consider that Vaughan Williams has never written anything finer than these "Five Mystical Songs," which are settings of poems of George Herbert.

In the B.B.C. National programme we have the Coldstream Guards Band in the afternoon, and in the evening a musical programme, with several old and well-tried variety artists. Continuing his talks on "Stars in their Courses," with gramaphone illustrations, James Agate, perhaps the most experienced critic of the drama, will introduce records of Forbes Robertson and Sybil Thorndike.

TO-MORROW.

DUBLIN: Choral Concert of Easter Songs and Hymns.

NATIONAL: Albert Sandler and Park Lane Orchestra.

REGIONAL: Wireless Military Band, 3.55; Orchestral Concert, 9.5.

LANGENBERG: "Parsifal," from Cologne, 6.15.

MILAN, VIENNA and RADIO PARIS: "Aida," from La Scala, 9.

ROME: Operetta, "The Toreador," 8.45.

THE famous Milan opera house, La Scala, is celebrating the Easter festival with a performance of the opera that shows its great resources to the best advantage. That opera, of course, is Verdi's "Aida." La Scala has at command the heroic voices required for Verdi's brilliant arias and ensembles. It has a splendid orchestra, well able to do justice to his score. It has the largest permanent chorus maintained by any opera house, and this chorus delights in the opportunities it gets in "Aida." La Scala has also a properly trained stage band accustomed to the work required of it in opera, and not likely to be the laughing stock that the stage band so often is elsewhere. La Scala, moreover, has the specially made trumpets, always known as the "Aida" trumpets, that are used in the triumphal march.

Last for mention, though almost first in importance in connection with "Aida," it has the great width and depth of stage, more necessary and more effective in use in "Aida" than in any other opera. The Milanese themselves, no matter how accustomed, still are thrilled with pride when they look upon the great scene of the Triumph of Radames, for they know that in no other theatre in the world can it be seen just so.

THE SCENE.

If you are listening to this performance to-night—it will be broadcast by the North Italian stations, and by an Austrian and a French station—picture to yourself that splendid stage spectacle. The great volume of sound from chorus, orchestra and stage band will more or less suggest it to you. On the royal dais is the Egyptian King with his daughter, Amneris. With them are courtiers and attendants, the latter including the Princess's dusky slave, "Aida." Close by is the High Priest, with an attendant body of priests, and in front of the dais is a guard of honour. The other side and the back of the stage are occupied by the main body of the chorus, representing the populace assembled to witness the triumph allowed to Radames on his return from his victory over the Egyptians' enemy, Amonasro, whom we shortly recognise as Aida's father.

As the triumphal procession enters, the numbers on the stage are rapidly swelled. The trumpeters sound their fanfares, the band advances, then the victorious generals escorts of troops. Last comes Radames himself, his chariot followed by a train of captives, headed by Amonasro.

All this, in a scene brilliantly lighted to represent Egypt's sunshine, and with all the costumes correspondingly bright and gay.

PRESS INFLUENCE ON WORLD PEACE.

NEED FOR INTELLIGENT INTERNATIONALISM.

The international influence of the Press on behalf of world peace was urged by Mr. J. G. Gregson, of Liverpool, in his presidential address to the National Union of Journalists, at their annual delegate meeting at Newport (Mon.) on Thursday.

Confessing himself a warm supporter of the Union's continued affiliation with the International Federation of Journalists, he said: "To me it seems crystal clear that the troubles under which the world is labouring to-day, whether manifested in chaotic finance, fiscal excesses, or aggressive militarism, are the outcome not of an intelligent internationalism, but of a combination of racial suspicion and exaggerated nationalism.

"The importance of the part which the newspaper Press of all countries can play in fostering what President Roosevelt recently described as 'the policy of the good neighbour' cannot be over-estimated.

"We, members of the National Union of Journalists, as the biggest organisation of working journalists in the world, would be sadly lacking in our sense of responsibility and false to our democratic traditions if—quite apart from the professional advantages which such co-operation affords—we failed to give full support to a movement which seeks to promote a better understanding between working journalists of different nationalities and, as a consequence, to improve relations between the peoples they represent. Who shall say that internationalism on these lines is not capable of making a valuable contribution to the peace and sanity of a distracted world?"

Mr. Gregson expressed concern at the free and easy way in which to-day it was possible for young people to enter journalism.

In order to limit the inflow of newcomers into the profession, and to ensure that they should be of the right intellectual quality, he believed that something in the nature of examinations for journalistic entrants would be an inevitable development in the future.

It would never be possible to make journalism an entirely closed profession. There would always be a certain number of men with special qualifications, who, probably late in life, would make their way into journalism from other callings—men who might conceivably enrich journalism and enlarge its influence.

EASTER VISITORS TO IRELAND.

There is to be a great influx of visitors to Ireland for the Easter. House parties have been arranged all over the country. At Kildangan Castle Mrs. More O'Ferrall is to have a full house. Sir Percy Loraine, High Commissioner for Egypt, will arrive by aeroplane to-day, and will land at Kildangan Park. After lunch he will attend the Phœnix Park races. Mrs. Peter Horlick, Mrs. Hill Whitsun, and Miss Denise Daly will also be in the party at the castle.

Lord and Lady Plunket are crossing for the wedding of Miss Olive Plunket, and they will also attend the Curragh races. They will make Kildangan their headquarters, as will Sir Anthony Weldon, and the Hon. Peter Beatty. Mr. Pepito Larios, whose first visit to Ireland this will be, is arriving to-morrow. Colonel George de Stackpoole and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Holloway are other visitors.

Sir Percy Loraine has a number of horses in training at Kildangan. He has won many races in Egypt.

FROM THE NORTHERN CAPITAL.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

THERE has been a distinct revival in Belfast shipbuilding during the past few months. After a period of prolonged depression, when there was not a single ship under construction on the twenty-four shipbuilding berths in the port, an order was received by Messrs. Workman, Clark and Co. for two 400 feet passenger and cargo motor ships for Messrs. Andrew Weir and Co. The keels of these vessels were laid a month ago, and considerable progress has been made with their construction. Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Ltd., have now received an order for two vessels for the Shaw Savell and Albion fast service between London and New Zealand. These vessels will be of a substantial size—500 feet long, with a deadweight capacity of 12,000 tons—and it is expected that they will provide employment for about 2,000 men for eighteen months.

The vessels will be high-class refrigerated motor cargo liners, with refrigerated space of 500,000 cubic feet for the carriage of New Zealand mutton, beef, butter and fruit. The placing of the order is probably a development of the Ottawa Conference and the increase in trade between Great Britain and New Zealand.

PLOTS FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

During their period of enforced idleness unemployed men in Belfast are showing a desire to secure garden allotments. The Garden Plots Association, of which Mr. Joseph G. Reid, 105 Royal avenue, is honorary treasurer, announce that within the last few weeks a considerable number of men have been accommodated on fresh ground, and are revelling in the occupation of breaking up the soil in ideal weather. The Association states, however, that there is a long and increasing waiting list, and they would be glad to receive further offers of ground, or information where suitable ground could be obtained near the city.

At the moment a stretch of twelve acres has been secured on the Shore road—space to accommodate 150 men—but the provision of the ground is held up, as a sum of £60 or £70 is required to fence the section. The fencing of new sections and the system of providing seeds and implements on the instalment principle involve a considerable outlay, but there is no more useful way of showing sympathy with the unemployed.

SCOUT CONFERENCE.

The International Scout Jamboree will be held this summer in Hungary, and a large contingent of Northern Ireland Scouts will participate in it. The wonderful growth of the Scout movement was described during the Ulster Scouters' Conference by the International Scout Commissioner, Mr. Hubert S. Martin, C.B.E., who has been aptly described as the second best-known Scout in the world. Twenty-five years ago, on the little island of Brownsea, off the Dorset coast, a man dreamed a dream and saw a vision. Little did the Chief Scout (Lord Baden-Powell) realise how quickly that dream would come true, and that within a few decades the movement which he initiated would spread over the world and have 2,500,000 members.

Mr. Martin declared that he had camped and "hiked" with brother Scouts in twenty-three different countries—with white Scouts, black Scouts, yellow Scouts and red Scouts—and he had become convinced that, whatever his nationality, creed or class might be, to a very large extent a boy was a boy all the world over, with very much the same characteristics, the same charm, and sometimes very much the same "cussedness." The Boy Scout movement is a strong organisation in the North, and the Catholic Boy Scouts is also a growing organisation.

ATTRACTING THE TOURIST.

The Ulster Tourist Development Association has a comprehensive programme for the coming season, when, it is hoped, the number of tourists that will visit Northern Ireland will constitute a record. Arrangements for this year's publicity include a reprint of 35,000 copies of the excellent 1932 guide, a reprint of 15,000 of the 1932 poster, a supplementary issue of 2,500 posters of the same design on cardboard, 40,000 copies of the leaflet "Coming Events in Northern Ireland," and 100,000 copies of a new folder, one side of which contains a map of Northern Ireland showing places of interest and ancient monuments. In addition, the Association is producing a set of county folders.

Last year the Association expended £1,300 on direct Press advertising. The Association continues to promote friendly relations with the two kindred organisations, the Travel and Industrial Development Association of Great Britain and the Irish Tourist Association in Dublin. Through co-operation with the latter body Northern literature, posters and photographs were displayed at the Cork Exhibition. Northern Ireland got a good deal of publicity in Great Britain last year as a holiday centre by reason of the visit of the Prince of Wales, and the Association expresses the hope that His Royal Highness may be able to return as a holiday visitor this year, and see more of the Ulster golf links and industrial enterprises.

IMPROVED RESORTS.

The Ulster Tourist Association report a continuing improvement in hotel and boarding-house accommodation in Northern Ireland. It is obvious that, while the Association can do much to encourage tourists to Ireland, it is entirely within the power of those who cater for visitors to ensure that they return. There is no finer advertisement for the country than the visitor who goes away satisfied, with a desire to return and to induce his friends to come also. In recent years the hotel accommodation in the North has been greatly improved and modernised. Hot and cold water in bedrooms is now the rule rather than the exception, and in some of the more recently constructed hotels there are such comforts as electric heaters in bedrooms and corridors.

The seaside resorts are also doing more to provide holiday attractions. Portrush has now a third golf course, in addition to numerous tennis courts and bowling greens. Newcastle will open in the coming season a new swimming pond. Bangor has its municipal golf course, and is extending the tennis and other facilities for outdoor recreation. Donaghadee has a new water supply, and tennis courts, in addition to an excellent golf course. It is the desire of the Tourist Association and the Northern Government to make tourist traffic a prosperous and permanent industry, and with the co-operation of all interests this is being achieved.

LAND ANNUITIES.

The Northern farmers, notwithstanding Viscount Craigavon's emphatic rejection of their request for a reduction in the land annuities, are pressing for a reconsideration of the payments, and such reorganisation of the finances of the scheme as would reduce the immediate payment without in any way repudiating liability. How this can be effected has been put forward by Mr. R. N. Boyd, Carrickfergus, who is keenly interested in all matters relating to agriculture. He contends that the sinking fund established in connection with the land annuity payments has exceeded—owing to the higher rates of interest prevailing since the War—the amount contemplated at the beginning, and that the farmers should get the benefit of the increase. By making full allowance for the higher interest received upon the sinking fund, Mr. Boyd calculates that an annuity of £40 per annum could be reduced now to £26 if the farmers got the full advantage of the increased value of their sinking fund.

Many farmers in the North feel that this whole matter ought to be carefully investigated by an expert committee, on which the farmers would have due representation, and that their legitimate demands for a rearrangement of the finances of land purchase should not be turned down peremptorily.

A GREAT HOSPITAL.

Belfast is deservedly proud of the Royal Victoria Hospital, one of the largest and best equipped general hospitals in Great Britain or Ireland. She is also proud of the fact that it is largely maintained by the working men and women in the city. The upkeep of the hospital amounts to £57,000 per annum, and the greater portion of this is provided by the Workers' Committee, which organised weekly hospital collections in the shipyards, mills, factories and workshops in Belfast. This contribution, usually 1d. per week per worker, is collected as regularly as the levy to the trade union funds. It is interesting to note that, while general contributions have declined, the workers' subscriptions, notwithstanding trade depression and unemployment, have remained steady, which is an indication of the high opinion entertained by the workers of the services rendered by the hospital. The street collection last year realised £3,770, and this year a big effort will be made to raise £5,000. There are 400 patients in the hospital, 160 nurses and about 90 physicians and surgeons. Apart from the great services of the hospital to the sick and injured, not the least valuable part of its work is the facilities which it affords for training 40 young doctors and 35 skilled nurses every year.

The 12th annual conference of the National Union of Commercial Travellers opened at Exeter yesterday, but the sessions were in private.

FRUIT GROWERS UNITING.

PROTECTION FROM THE FOREIGNER.

MAJOR E. M. Conolly, Celbridge, who presided at a preliminary conference of fruit-growers, held in the Commercial Buildings, Dublin, on Thursday, for the purpose of forming a Free State Fruit Growers' Association, said that, with a little attention, they could produce good fruit, give employment, and obtain a profit.

Dr. Ryan, Free State Minister for Agriculture, in a letter apologising for his absence owing to pressure of business, wrote:—"I consider any efforts for the development of the fruit-growing industry worthy of every support. I hope that your deliberations will be successful and that your efforts will be supported by the fruit-growers of the country as tending towards their own immediate benefit, and also the benefit of the country in general."

Mr. J. J. Bergin, acting hon. secretary, said that, according to figures supplied by the Free State Department of Industry and Commerce, the average cost of foreign apples, pears, and fruit pulp for the three years 1930, 1931 and 1932 was as follows:—

Average annual imports:

Apples	£236,106
Pears	49,564
Fruit pulp and juice not liable for duty...	35,395
	£321,065

NEVER SATISFACTORY.

These imports were unnecessary, and organisation and co-operation should eliminate them. That movement was overdue because conditions in the home-grown fruit industry had never been satisfactory to either the grower or the consumer. On the grower's side, the causes of complaint might be classified under two main headings:—

(1) Absence of a market at a remunerative price.

(2) Cost of marketing, where a market existed.

On the consumer's side, the difficulties appeared to be:—

(1) Absence of regular supplies.

(2) Lack of confidence regarding contents of packages due to growers' habit of including worthless produce.

They would have to consider four possible outlets for soft fruit:—

(1) Sale and delivery to the fresh fruit trade when packing and transport have been immensely improved.

(2) Sale to jam factories

(3) Canning for domestic use.

(4) Sale in the form of pulp to jam factories.

All efforts must be concentrated on the marketing difficulties. When these had been satisfactorily settled, an extension of the soft fruits area could be undertaken. As the fruit season is near, it would be advisable not to lose time in getting to work.

HARD FRUITS.

While the nation was spending during the last three years an average of £236,106 per annum on foreign apples and just £50,000 per annum on foreign pears, many growers in Ireland were allowing lots to go to waste, because, to use their own words, "it would not pay to market them." Irish growers of apples had earned a bad reputation as packers because so many lots had been found to contain a couple of dozen excellent apples on top of the package and rubbish in the centre or bottom. The whole industry and the nation suffered huge losses because of such unbusiness-like methods. Marketing was, therefore, largely a question of packing. Freight charges, tolls, commission, etc., could be modified if, and when, there was business to be done.

Before any effort to improve marketing conditions was made, organising work must be done. The industry must be controlled, he said, and the controllers ought to be the growers.

Mr. Thornton, Castleknock, Co. Dublin, as a strawberry grower, urged the necessity for protection.

Mr. Thornton drew attention to the need for growing sallies for the purpose of making punnets. There were plenty of swamps suitable for this purpose, and the sallies could be easily grown.

Mr. McKenzie, Horticultural Instructor, Carlow, agreed that it was necessary to get protection against foreign competition before they could get anything worth while.

Mr. Gray, Dublin, said that the grievances of County Dublin growers were numerous. They were handicapped by the high cost of land and labour, and also by market conditions. The quality of soft fruit grown in County Dublin was second to none. He agreed that protection was an important point.

It was finally decided to appoint a subcommittee of four to confer with a similar committee to be appointed at the preliminary conference to be held in Thurles.

It was decided to leave the summoning of the conference at the Dublin Spring Show to Mr. Bergin, Acting Hon. Secretary.

TRAVEL WITHOUT RESTRICTION.

HOLIDAY CONTRACT TICKETS.

The Great Southern Railways, with their usual enterprise, are this year introducing a novel idea in the line of a seven-day holiday contract ticket.

The company have taken nine areas, covering the principal holiday resorts in the Free State, and with the aid of the contract ticket (which can be purchased for the extraordinarily low fares of 10s. third class and 15s. first class) the visitor, instead of being confined to one resort, can make day trips, or travel from point to point to other resorts in the area.

As these areas cover from 100 to 200 miles, the cost works out at a fractional part of a penny per mile. As an instance of the travel value of these tickets, a visitor stopping at Bray can make afternoon trips to the coastal resorts of Dun Laoghaire, Dalkey, Killiney, and Greystones, on any or every afternoon of the seven days, see The Scalp at Carrickmines, make day trips to Wicklow for the Silver Strand and Murrough; Rathnew for the Devil's Glen, Rathdrum for Glendalough, Avoca for the far-famed Meeting of the Waters, Woodenbridge to enjoy the sylvan beauty of the valleys, Arklow, Gorey, Ferns, and Enniscorthy; travel to Wexford, so full of historical associations, and to Rosslare Strand, to revel in its beautiful stretch of fine strand.

All the other areas provide tours of a similar nature, but yet individual in their charms and scope for amusement.

In providing these tours at such low cost the railway company are introducing a travel feature, which will be much appreciated by those at home and visitors to our shores.

IRISH CHURCH UNION.

GENERAL VESTRY ELECTIONS.

The attention of General Vestries is directed to the fact that this year is the year for triennial elections. In addition to the officers who are elected annually—viz., Churchwardens and Select Vestrymen—there will be an election of Diocesan Synodsmen and Parochial Nominators, who hold office for three years.

Parochial Nominators hold a key position in our Church, as on them devolves the duty of voting for the appointment of an Incumbent to their parish in the event of a vacancy. Vestrymen ought to assure themselves that the men elected to this important office represent the views of the parishioners.

Synodsmen will be called upon to vote for representatives in the General Synod, and thus indirectly control the legislation of the Church. There is a determined effort to change the outlook of the Church of Ireland, and there is great likelihood that within the next three years further attempts will be made to secure a repeal of Canon XXXVI, forbidding the erection of a Cross on the Communion Table. . . .

In these circumstances, Vestrymen are counselled only to elect Synodsmen who will undertake to oppose any effort to repeal our canons or destroy the Protestant character of the Church of Ireland.—(Advt.)

NEW CATTLE TARIFFS.

TRADE VIEWS OF EFFECTS.

CREATING A FREE STATE QUOTA.

"IN my opinion," said Senator Counihan, ex-Chairman of the Irish Cattle Traders' and Stockowners' Association, when questioned by an Irish Times representative on Thursday, "the change in the British Customs duty from 40 per cent. ad valorem to a flat rate per head on our cattle will virtually mean an embargo on a large proportion of our store cattle. It means an additional charge of over 60 per cent. There can be no mistake about that, for the new Order states that the duty to be charged is 100 per cent. ad valorem or the rate per head, whichever is the least."

As an illustration he instanced the case of a two-year-old beast purchased from a farmer at £8 under the 40 per cent. tax. The tax on that animal heretofore worked out at £3. Under the new rates it would be £6. That meant that the price of that class of animal which constituted the bulk of the store cattle export would drop from £8 to £5.

"There is no change," he said, "in the British Customs duty on sheep, lambs, pigs or other dutiable products. These will still be valued on the 40 per cent. ad valorem basis. With regard to springers and milch cows there appears to be some uncertainty, but I am inclined to believe that they will come under the £6 tariff, which would be an advantage.

"Of course, for the ordinary exporter this new Order will simplify matters, as he is not concerned whether the tariffs are £1 or £6, for he will buy to meet them.

"Fully 85 per cent. of the cattle being exported from now until the beginning of August will be two years old and over, and the duty on all of these will be £6 per head."

When asked what would be the ultimate effect upon the smaller stockbreeders, Senator Counihan said—

"The effect will be most serious in the poorer counties such as Mayo, Galway, parts of Clare, Kerry, West Cork and the poorer parts of other counties that have no dairying, and whose principal means of using the land is the rearing of young stock and making forward stores to be sold to the Leinster buyers and for export to England. In those parts the farmers will be very badly hit, as the tariff on their cattle will now be £6 per head or 60 per cent. more than the recent tariff.

RAW MATERIAL.

"There will be very little export of store cattle until the end of summer, and even then the cattle which will be exported will be calves and cattle under 15 months old, for no other stores can stand the tariff. If the present scheme of taxation should continue for a couple of years, then nothing will be shipped except young stock, because nothing else could stand it. We will then be exporting to England nothing but the raw material, which will show a very poor return in the matter of money. Then, I am afraid our cattle exports, instead of being thirteen millions will be reduced to three millions in a very short time, if instead of exporting forward cattle at from £10 to £20 we will only be sending young cattle making from £2 to £4, with a small proportion of finished cattle, which, after deducting the tax, will also only realise a small price."

Mr. Matthew O'Connor, of Messrs. Bergin, O'Connor and Co., the well-known cattle salesmen, said there was no doubt that the new scale of British duties on Free State cattle was designed to produce revenue. If the export bounty was not in operation, prices would be even worse than they were. It seemed to him that the object of the British Government was to create a Free State quota through the tariff now imposed.

SANITY NEEDED.

"Why cannot we have the country run by a sane party which does not bring politics into everything it does. Too long have farmers been the playthings of political leaders, and the sooner they realise this and waken up to a sense of their own importance the better for the country."

Mr. Magee, of Holyhead, a regular buyer at the Dublin Cattle market, pointed out to our representative that, as shippers were liable to heavy fines for any mistake in declaring the age of Free State cattle brought to England, they would have to buy cautiously. The new rates, he said, would be £2 per head more than the old, and there would be no rebate. If it were not for the bounty of 12½ per cent., they would not come to Dublin. The only beast they could buy with safety was the animal scaling from 11 to 12 cwt., and the market in England was glutted with them. "There are more heavy cattle in England than are wanted, and the tendency is to buy small cattle, but we cannot do so," he said. "We could not face the duty of £6 per head."

Senator O'Hanlon said that the new duties would bring home to farmers the difference which there really was between Free State and Northern Ireland cattle. They would give a definite idea of the immense loss which the country was suffering.

The owners of young cattle would also be severely hit. People buying young cattle to fatten would have regard for the fact that, while existing conditions last, they must allow for a duty of £6 per head on landing the animals in England.

DUBLIN CYCLIST IN CRITICAL STATE.

A cyclist, John Conlan, 13 North Strand, Dublin, sustained severe head injuries when knocked down by a 'bus in the vicinity of his home last night. He was taken to the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital and detained. His condition is described as critical.

GOOD FRIDAY IN THE CHURCHES.

BIG CONGREGATIONS AT ALL SERVICES.

The observance of the religious obligations of Good Friday was very noticeable in the congregations that assembled in the Protestant Churches in Dublin yesterday. Very large numbers attended the morning Services and partook of Holy Communion, and the evening Services were also marked by the presence of hundreds of parishioners and visitors. The music was of a devotional character, appropriate to the day, while the sermons dealt with the significance of Easter.

In St. Patrick's Cathedral there was morning prayer at 10 o'clock. The Psalm was the twenty-second and the Service included the Benedicite, Chant 19, and Benedictus, 20. There were the Litany and Ante-Communion at 11-15, when the Anthem "Call to Remembrance" (Ferrant) was beautifully sung. At the evening Service Psalm 40 was chanted, and Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis were sung, the setting being to Hopkins in F. The anthem was "Thy rebuke . . . Surely He hath borne our griefs" (Handel), and the hymn, 583, "When our heads are bowed."

There was Morning Service in Christ Church Cathedral at 11 o'clock, with the Te Teum (Tallis), the anthem, "O Saviour of the world" (Goss), hymn 544, and Kyrie and Credo (Farrant in G minor). At the Evening Service at 3 o'clock the setting was to Cooke in G. The anthem was "My God, My God" (Mendelssohn) and the hymn was 127. The anthems were sung with fine effect. The special offerings were for the Church of Ireland Auxiliary to the Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews.

THREE HOURS' DEVOTION.

There were three hours' devotion, from 12 noon until 3 p.m., in St. Bartholomew's Church, in addition to Morning and Evening Services, and a Children's Service was held in Holy Trinity Church, Rathmines, and in St. Jude's Church at 10 a.m., and in St. Stephen's Church, where there was one hour's meditation from 2 to 3 p.m. There was a quiet hour in St. George's Parish Church from 2 to 3 p.m., and a Penitential Service at 8 p.m. In All Saints' Church, Grangegorman, there were three hours' devotion from 12 noon to 3 p.m., and also in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Sandymount.

A special musical Service was held in St. Peter's Church, Aungier street, at 8 o'clock in the evening. Sacred cantatas were rendered in many churches in the evening, the most popular being Stainer's "Crucifixion" and Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary."

The cantata, "God is Love" (Mrs. Robinson), was interpreted with fine sympathy in Zion Church, Rathgar, last night. The choir appreciated the composer's intention, and did it full justice. The soloists, Mrs. F. L. Barrett, Mrs. Atock, Mr. C. W. Sholdice, and Mr. A. Harrison, brought out all the beauty of their parts, and added very considerably to the effectiveness of the singing.

The Lenten cantata, "Penitence, Pardon, and Peace" (Maunder), solos from the "Messiah," and anthems were sung at Clontarf Parish Church in the evening. The soloists were Mr. Geoffrey Quaile and Mr. Harry Forman. The entire music was most appropriately given.

Messrs. Wesley Guard and W. C. Maddison were the soloists in "The Crucifixion," which was sung at Sandford Parish Church in the evening.

At all coast churches Services were well attended yesterday. Special Services were held in many of the Protestant churches. From 2 to 3 p.m. there was one-hour Service of meditation and prayer at Holy Trinity, Killiney. At Christ Church, Kingstown, the sermon at Matins was preached by the Rector, the Rev. N. H. Hamilton, and at Evensong Tozer's Cantata was sung by the choir. Canon Chamberlain preached at Morning Service at the Mariners' Church, and Mr. E. H. Flint spoke at the Evening Service. At All Saints', Blackrock, at the "One Hour Service," the preacher was the Rev. Noble H. Hamilton. Canon Williams preached at Christ Church, Blackrock. The Rev. B. C. Waller spoke on "Christ and Ourselves" at Monkstown Parish Church, and a Musical Service from Part II. of the "Messiah" was held at St. John's, Monkstown.

There were crowded congregations at all the Catholic Churches. In the morning Mass of the Pre-Sanctified was celebrated with processional hymns, and in the afternoon "The Stations of the Cross" were made and "The Passion" preached.

CANTATA AT CHRIST CHURCH, KINGSTOWN.

In the presence of a large congregation at Christ Church, Kingstown, the choir last night gave an excellent rendering of Tozer's cantata, "The Way of the Cross."

The soloists were:—Madame Borel, the well-known soprano; Mr. John Gill, the tenor of high city repute, and Mr. F. Moore Mease, a fine bass. Mr. F. T. Gick, the choirmaster, who presided at the organ, gave valuable support to the vocalists, and their singing, as a whole, reflected credit on him and them. The various solo parts were sung in excellent voice, and were worthy of the composer's demand.

Holy Days.

"A Chronology and History of the World," written nearly two centuries ago by the Reverend John Blair, states that, in the year B.C. 2348, "the Ark rested on Mount Ararat on Wednesday, May 6th." To-day, when we encounter such an aggressive sureness it provokes a smile; but we do not find it now in the Christian attitude to tradition, and we do not find it in the most profound teachings of modern science. It has become the hall-mark of that new school of intellectual and political revolution which rejects the divine element in human nature and is at war alike with the lessons of history and with the gathered wisdom of all human experience. Those lessons and that wisdom are being reinforced, in these astonishing times of scientific discovery, by ever-widening glimpses of a plan of the universe which increasingly confirms the truth of the Christian revelation. Men may deny God, but they cannot deny such results of a Godless civilisation as are seen to-day in the state of Russia. They cannot deny those calamities in the world's international relations—the hungers, the confusions, the panics, the distrusts—which are the outcome of blind, because strictly man-made, policies. We hope, and believe, that as the world becomes more frightened and more saddened by the collapse of such policies, it will turn, with a new humility, to the only Power that can save it. Once more the procession of the Christian year simplifies and sanctifies our discordant lives with its call to contemplation of the great realities. Good Friday has recorded the price of our redemption and has bidden us to pour contempt on all our pride. To-morrow will renew the assurance of our immortality, but we shall not have taken the full message unless we accept it with a high and strong resolve to fit ourselves for immortality; and every Christian must strive to express that resolve in terms of citizenship. Here in Ireland, and everywhere through all the continents, the political and social outlook is pregnant with menace. Only one thing is certain—that human statesmanship must fail miserably if its counsels refuse to invoke the spirit and teaching of Christ.

Germany and her Critics.

One of the most interesting manifestations of the post-war mind in Europe is the remarkable growth of national sensitiveness. It may be an aspect of that "inferiority complex" which is used to explain almost every eccentricity of the human race, or it may be a relic of what the Germans term Kriegspsychose, or war mentality. On Thursday the House of Commons debated the proposal to negotiate a Four-Power Pact between Britain, Italy, France and Germany. During the discussion several members spoke rather freely about actual conditions in Europe, and the conduct of the Nazi Government in Germany evoked some pungent criticisms. In particular, Sir Austen Chamberlain and Mr. Winston Churchill, both outspoken debaters, inveighed in energetic terms against Herr Hitler and his colleagues. They denounced the steps that had been taken against the Jews, and Sir Austen Chamberlain described the revival of the Potsdam spirit as "the worst of the old Prussianism, with an added savagery of national pride and exclusiveness, which cannot allow to any fellow-subject, not of pure Nordic blood, birth equality or right of citizenship within the country to which they belong." Mr. Churchill was almost equally vehement, and other members expressed their views with unvarnished frankness.

These incidents have raised a storm of indignant protest in Germany. The German Ambassador in London has been instructed to take the matter up with the Foreign Office, and a large part of the Berlin Press has worked itself into a condition of fury. One newspaper speaks of "this monstrous outburst against a friendly country"; but the more sensible organs of German opinion recognise the fact that neither Sir Austen Chamberlain nor Mr. Winston Churchill is a member of His Majesty's Government, and that the latter has a reputation as an enfant terrible. On the other hand, even those newspapers which realise that private members of Parliament cannot be gagged in a democratic country take the view that Sir John Simon ought to have rebuked Germany's critics, whereas, in fact, he ignored them. The whole business is a storm in a tea-cup. Hard things have been said about Britain in every Parliament in Europe. Attacks of the bitterest kind often have been made on her by the Senate of the United States; but British Ambassadors are not ordered to make protesting démarches. When Herr Hitler has been in power a little longer he will learn that politicians must be prepared to accept hard blows from time to time, and that it never is wise to take official cognisance of them. Bismarck would have dealt with such a situation in a vastly different manner, but he was a great statesman.

We agree with the view that the Parliament of one nation ought not to interfere with the domestic affairs of another; but Herr Hitler's treatment of the Jews hardly can be regarded as a matter of purely domestic concern. The Jewish race is scattered over the face of the globe. Jews generally are admirable citizens, and in England and the United States some of them occupy the highest positions of honour and trust. These men cannot be expected to remain quiet while their kinsfolk in Germany are being subjected to conditions that make them virtual outcasts in a land in which some of them have been settled since the days of the Romans. Protests not only by Jews, but also by persons of liberal mind in all nations, are inevitable. One of the chief reasons of Germany's downfall in 1918 was her rulers' obstinate refusal to pay the least heed to world opinion. No nation, however powerful, can afford to adopt that attitude; for, as the Germans themselves say, Man kommt nicht mit dem Kopf durch die Wand—you cannot push your head through a wall. It is possible that, from the Nazis' point of view, something can be said in favour of their anti-Semitic policy; but they will not gain anybody's sympathy by the banning of a newspaper, such as the Manchester Guardian, which always has been among Germany's best friends, or by petulant protests against independent criticism. The Germans are a great people; their admirers expect them to act in a manner befitting their high traditions.

Trade Agreements.

When Great Britain departed from her traditional policy of free trade she refused to make commercial agreements with any foreign countries until the Ottawa Conference should have been held. Now that her relations with the Dominions have been fixed, she is at liberty to make trade pacts with foreign Governments; and the process has begun. Negotiations for a trade agreement with the Argentine Republic, which still supplies the great bulk of Britain's needs in the matter of meat, are advancing satisfactorily, and both parties expect a successful outcome of them in the near future. A basis of agreement with Sweden will be submitted to Parliament shortly after Easter. Heads of an agreement with Norway and Denmark have been reached, involving, as Mr. Walter Runciman announced in the House of Commons this week, the prospect of a considerable expansion of trade. Between Britain and Germany, once formidable rivals for the world's markets, an arrangement is being devised which, on the one hand, virtually will double the amount of British coal exports to Germany, and, on the other hand, will allow certain German goods to enter Britain on a reduced scale of duty. The process of agreement, in all probability, will continue until Great Britain has entered into specific relations with nearly all foreign countries for mutual advantage. Two nations, however, are in a fair way to lose whatever benefits they once possessed, or still might derive, from association with the great English market. The first is Soviet Russia, whose high-handed treatment of British subjects has roused the normally sluggish Government at Westminster to drastic action. An Anglo-Soviet agreement has expired, and it is almost certain that no new agreement will take its place; the Russians must suffer for their breach of the diplomatic courtesies. The second nation is the Irish Free State, who, also through a disregard of the international decencies, has squandered her chance to make capital out of the British market. For the sake of a stiff-necked pride President de Valera has chosen to alienate the British Government, and—more important—the British consumer, who was the mainstay of Irish prosperity. While nearly all the nations are seeking the friendship of Great Britain, with the numerous advantages which attend that friendship, the Free State and Russia alone reject it.

Vandals.

The English people in general are not addicted to deliberate vandalism, but some recent instances of apparently wanton destruction suggest that the habit is being acquired. Since the middle of February no fewer than forty-four separate outbreaks of fire have occurred in Ashdown Forest. The Sussex highlands, where Ashdown Forest is located, are among the most beautiful regions of England, and the fires (says a Special Correspondent of The Times) have brought black devastation to nearly 2,000 acres of this lovely country. Every March for years past there have been outbreaks of fire in Ashdown Forest, and most of them have been suspicious in their origin; but this year, either because the incendiaries have become more venturesome or because the dry weather has helped destruction to spread, the havoc is much worse than it used to be. There seems to be no doubt that the fires are caused by human agency. Some people claim that misunderstandings between the commoners and the Board of Conservators are at fault; others ascribe the evil work to a desire to improve the grazing. We cannot draw any save a deplorable lesson from the outbreaks; but they will serve to remind Irishmen that a certain amount of similar vandalism goes on here every summer. Heather fires are far too common, and destruction of this sort is almost equally reprehensible whether it springs from wantonness or from negligence. The picnic party that destroys a mountain-side through inattention to the ordinary rules of care differs only in degree from the urchin who starts a fire out of sheer nastiness.

THE GARDENER.

She thought He was the gardener—
The man who tended helpless things.
The angels' words were nought to her,
Their dazzling robes and shining wings,
Their answers and their questionings.

High Heaven could not comfort her
With talk of living and of dead.
She thought He was the gardener
And asked His kindly aid, instead.
"Tell me where He is laid," she said.

She poured her sorrow at His feet,
Seeing Him dimly, through a blur
Of lonely tears. It was most meet
That He should give back joy to her
Who thought Him, first, the gardener.

LONDON LETTER.

GOOD FRIDAY IN LONDON.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

To-day has been the quietest Good Friday that London has known for years. The magnificent weather had induced many people to leave town yesterday, with the result that the roads were much less crowded than is usually the case. The sunshine made little difference to the church attendance, and the Services had crowded congregations—particularly, for the three hours' devotion, which at St. Paul's Cathedral was conducted by the Bishop of Kensington, and at Westminster Abbey by Canon Brook. In the evening the streets of the West End offered some interesting contrasts. Long religious processions of witness moved about among the crowds of people waiting for admission to cinemas and other entertainments. At several of the picture houses special pictures, supposed to be more in keeping with the day than those of the usual character, were displayed, while in others there was a short religious Service. At one of these Services the Dean of Rochester gave the address.

The Moscow Trial.

It is expected that the Moscow trial will continue for some days, but a constant watch will be maintained here by the Foreign Office, and a Cabinet meeting will be called immediately, if circumstances should warrant such action. The Russian Imports Act received the Royal Assent yesterday, and Mr. Stanley Baldwin, as Acting Prime Minister during the absence of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, will be enabled to take any steps deemed desirable to carry into effect the powers secured from Parliament. Public opinion in this matter is so definitely in favour of the full protection of British subjects that there can be little doubt about definite action on the part of the Government if it is required. In political circles there is a feeling that the Soviet Government fully appreciates the force of British opinion in this matter.

O.G.P.U. Methods.

The proceedings at the Moscow trial yesterday have thrown a new light on the so-called confession of Mr. Macdonald, while Sir John Simon's explicit declaration in the House of Commons has made it abundantly clear that Great Britain has nothing with which to reproach herself in connection with the inquiry. Mr. Macdonald's withdrawal of his plea of guilty is a highly significant indication of the methods of the O.G.P.U., which consist of an almost continuous stream of questions, designed to break down the moral of the victim, and a series of confrontations with people who allege that the prisoner has made statements of the kind desired to them. The questioning is conducted by relays of highly specialised investigators, and may take place at any moment. A favourite plan is to let the prisoner sleep and then suddenly to rouse him with a string of accusations. The prisoner is always told that his colleagues or fellow-workers have admitted the truth of the charges, and is called upon to confess in order that his punishment may be lightened. It would seem that this method has been applied to Mr. Macdonald.

The "Officer in the Tower."

The sentence inflicted upon Lieutenant Baillie-Stewart will be promulgated to the Army through the medium of the London Gazette, and in this connection the wording of the sentence is of importance. Cashiering in every case must precede the sentence of imprisonment or penal servitude, so that the offender may go to prison as a civilian and not as an officer. Sentences imposed do not take effect until they are promulgated, but, when that takes place, the accused is dismissed not only from the Army, but also from every other post in which he may hold a commission from the Crown, while it further entails the loss of any decorations awarded for services. In addition, the subject is precluded for ever from holding any official position in the civil, naval or military services under the Crown. There are eight degrees of punishment in the case of offending officers, the first of which is death. Lieutenant Baillie-Stewart has been awarded the second—penal servitude for not less than three years.

France's Prestige.

The French Government, having come to the conclusion that France has lost her prestige in foreign countries, has decided to spend several millions of francs more every year on propaganda. A Department for Propaganda is now being reorganised at the Quai d'Orsay, under the direction of M. Pierre Comert, formerly head of the Information Section of the League of Nations. An army of lecturers, novelists and artists will be sent to the more impressionable of the Anglo-Saxon countries, while theatre companies will be subsidised more generously when travelling abroad. Particular attention will be paid to the United States, where it is known that France has become unpopular as a result of her failure to pay her War-debt instalment last year.

The Musk Rat.

Musk rats, which by their long tunnels destroy river, canal and railway embankments, have made their way to the South of England. In the Arun Valley district of Sussex over thirty of the rats have been caught in the past two weeks, and the Ministry of Agriculture has taken steps to ascertain the extent of the danger. A complete survey of the Upper Arun and the Rother River is being considered, but for the present attention is being confined to a suspected area of about sixty square miles. Notices have been issued describing the appearance of musk rats and stressing the danger of allowing them to multiply.

Telephone Progress.

One of the most up-to-date trunk long-distance telephone exchanges in the world is being opened in Manchester in the autumn of this year. It forms part of the General Post Office's scheme for the speeding up of long distance telephonic communication, and will put every subscriber within a radius of twenty miles of Manchester in immediate touch with subscribers in every big industrial centre in the country. Work on a great new switchboard has begun. The cities with which Manchester will be connected by the new system include London, Birmingham, Bristol, Cardiff, Glasgow, Hull, Leicester, Nottingham, Newcastle and Belfast. Calls to these centres will be available "on demand," and the average time for a call to be put through will be only ninety seconds.

The Abolition of Slavery.

In the course of the summer special celebrations will be held in connection with the centenary of the abolition of slavery by the Parliament of Great Britain at a cost of twenty millions sterling. Sir John Simon will speak at a celebration in York Minster, which will be attended by the Lord Mayor and Corporation of the City, and a special Service will be held in Chichester Cathedral on Sunday, July 2nd. Meetings are being organised by the Lord Mayors of Swansea, Cardiff, Bradford and Norwich, while at Hull, the city of William Wilberforce, the Archbishop of York will inaugurate a week of celebration on July 23rd. The house of Wilberforce, maintained in Hull in its original state, is regarded as one of the city's greatest treasures.

THE O.G.P.U.'S THIRD DEGREE.

WHY ACCUSED BRITISH ENGINEERS WROTE STATEMENTS.

"CONFESSIONS" UNDER MORAL PRESSURE.

SIR JOHN SIMON DENIES THAT MEN WERE IN SECRET SERVICE.

THE trial of the six British engineers, of Metropolitan-Vickers' Russian woman secretary, and of the ten other Russians on charges of espionage, bribery and sabotage entered its third day yesterday.

Several of the accused Englishmen have been called to give evidence, and they all took an early opportunity to retract incriminatory statements alleged to have been made in the course of their questioning by the O.G.P.U.

> As one pointed out, "When I wrote it I was in such a state that I would have written anything. I wrote under moral pressure."

The attitude of Macdonald—his original plea of guilty, his dramatic withdrawal of that plea on Thursday, and then an apparent later fresh admission of his guilt—has created a confused situation.

Under Soviet and other continental law his guilt is not proved until all the evidence has been heard, and his plea is quite inconclusive if reversed by the subsequent evidence.

When reversing his plea Macdonald said:—"I pleaded guilty under the statements made in the indictment. As these statements are incorrect, I now plead not guilty."

Gregory caused a stir in the court when he flung some sharp remarks at the judges in order to defend himself. "This man insults and injures my reputation," he declared, "and the judge accepts his word without question. Is this justice?"

Sir John Simon (Foreign Secretary), in the House of Commons on Thursday, said:—"In view of the nature of the charges made against the six British subjects at the Moscow trial, I desire to make the following specific statement:—

"None of these men has ever been employed, directly or indirectly, in connection with any branch of our intelligence service. None of them has ever supplied any information to any such branch. None of them has ever been paid or promised any reward for such information, or has been supplied with any money to obtain it. None of them has ever made any report to, or on behalf of, our intelligence service.

"These statements are equally true of the Metropolitan-Vickers Company itself—that is to say, the company has not, and never has had, any connection with our intelligence service whatever."

GUILTY PLEA WITHDRAWN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Thursday.

WHEN the second day of the trial opened the first witness to be called was Sokolov, another of the accused Russians. He gave his evidence with bowed head. In reply to the presiding judge he said that he met Macdonald and Gusev (the engineer at Zlataoust, who gave evidence on Wednesday) in 1930, and became a member of a counter-revolutionary organisation.

Macdonald was then called, and, speaking in English, began to retract his plea of guilty.

"I did not tell Solokov to commit sabotage," he said.

"Why did you say so in the indictment?" asked the prosecutor, Vishinsky.

"I considered it convenient in the circumstances, and no translation of my statement was made in my presence. I admitted I was guilty yesterday."

"ACTUALLY NOT GUILTY."

Do you say so to-day?—No; I am actually not guilty.

Continuing his cross-examination of Macdonald, the prosecutor asked: "Are you guilty to-day?"

Macdonald—According to my testimony, given by myself, yes; but actually, no. According to what has been said to-day I am not guilty.

Did you pay Sokolov for information?—No; I gave money to Gusev and others for

METHODS OF THE O.G.P.U.

Mr. W. A. Rukeyser, describing the methods of the O.G.P.U., the Soviet Political Police, states that anyone who is kept long enough in their "conveyor" will confess to anything.

The prisoner is interrogated for days and nights on end by officers working in shifts, without permitting him a single wink of sleep. A powerful light is made to play on the top of his head. The questions are disjointed and apparently without purpose. It is physical and mental torture of the most severe kind, and, if prolonged, causes insanity.

overtime work, about 2,500 roubles, part from my own pocket and part from the Moscow office.

So you paid overtime from your own pocket?—Yes, I did, and I never got it back from the firm.

Vishinsky showed Macdonald that he had written in his own handwriting that he had received secret information from Sokolov, and asked him why he wrote that if he denied it to-day.

WHY HE WROTE IT.

Macdonald—Under the circumstances it was more convenient to write that testimony.

Did you give evidence under the influence of Thornton's evidence?—Not Thornton's evidence.

A profound sensation was caused by Macdonald's testimony and the sudden turning of the tables. The interpreter was frequently called upon to get exact shades of meaning from Macdonald, who momentarily confounded the ranks of the prosecution.

Standing up straight, despite his lame leg, Macdonald denounced, in cool and calculated terms, the statements contained in the indictment and written in his own hand, and described his career in Russia.

"I admitted systematic wreckage and military espionage," he said. "I obtained information about guns and aeroplanes."

Prosecutor—Why?—I was merely interested. (A reply which caused a stir of laughter in the court.) I understood that Thornton was at the head of an espionage group, and that Monkhouse and Cushny also spied.

LOST NERVE.

Thornton was then cross-examined on Macdonald's evidence. He emphatically denied that he had received from Macdonald secret information concerning military plants, aeroplane engines, and gun-testing grounds.

Asked why he had made an untrue statement when questioned, he said, "Because I lost my nerve. Those serious charges against me made a very heavy impression on me."

The President of the Court—When did your nerve return?

Thornton (with emphasis)—On the evening of April 4th, at six o'clock, when I was released from prison.

Macdonald, continuing his evidence, said: "I got information from Gusev, not for the firm, but independently, because I was personally interested."

The President—Why do you want to make yourself foolish in the eyes of the public?

Macdonald—I do not think I am foolish.

Thornton, called, said: "I did not know that Macdonald was wrecking and spying, otherwise I would have kicked him out."

Macdonald exclaimed: "Yes, he knew of the spying."

With this final conflict of evidence Macdonald limped out of the box.

LOAN OF 3,000 ROUBLES.

Mr. Thornton was then called and admitted that though he had written in his testimony that he had paid money for secret information and had bribed employés to overlook defects in Metropolitan-Vickers machinery, this testimony was untrue, and that he had testified thus because he was afraid.

"Afraid of what?" he was asked.

"Of whom or what, I don't know," he replied.

"I admit lending Dolgov three thousand roubles, which was entered in the book as a transfer of funds."

The cross-examination of Macdonald and Thornton revealed the fact that the alleged evidence of each had been read to the other. Macdonald said: "I was affected by the testimony of Thornton, in which he said he had used me to collect information, and I considered it was useless on my part to deny it." Thornton said: "They read me the evidence of Monkhouse and Macdonald, which affected me very much."

Then came the question of whose evidence came first, since each had said that the influence of the other had influenced him. The question, however, was not cleared up.

Thornton was still giving evidence when the Court adjourned until the evening.

When the Court resumed Thornton underwent a staccato fire of questions from Reginsky, the Assistant-Prosecutor, who is trying to prove that Thornton received secret information through Macdonald from Gusev.

Thornton replied: "I think I did not ask the engineers for secret information. I can't remember if I asked Gusev or not."

When Macdonald was called on again he stated bluntly that he collected information through Gusev, which he transmitted to Thornton.

COMMERCIAL INFORMATION

Thornton said: "I received no military information from Macdonald. The only information I received was that which was of interest to the firm."

Comic relief was provided by the interpreter's inability to translate the term "common gossip" for Thornton. Foreign Pressmen eagerly shouted an explanation, whereupon Ulrich, the President of the Court, rang the bell and with a characteristic smile said: "Don't interfere. The Court has its own interpreter."

In answer to Vishinsky, Thornton said that Cushny had given him information only interesting to the firm.

Did Cushny play the same rôle as MacDonald?—He was my assistant for about two years. Nordwall gave me the same kind of information, which I sent to the London headquarters of the firm.

When the deposition was read to Thornton in which he is alleged to have said that he and Monkhouse collected secret information, Thornton said: "I wish to retract the word 'secret.'"

Monkhouse, when called, said that Thornton had testified correctly. "We collected information for the firm about the political and economic situation from employés, who, as loyal workers of the firm, gave the material of private conversations."

Madame Kuzunova was called, and con-

MORE WORK FOR BELFAST.

NEW SHIPYARD CONTRACT.

EMPLOYMENT FOR MANY MEN.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

I AM officially informed that Messrs. Workman, Clark (1928), Ltd., Belfast, have secured a contract to recondition four large vessels and fit them with exhaust turbo-electric combination machinery.

Mr. William Strachan, chairman of the firm, who returned to Belfast from London to-day, stated that they were not at liberty to disclose the names of the vessels at present.

AN IMPORTANT ORDER.

"It is, however," he added, "an important order, and the vessels will be coming along very shortly. The first of them will be here next month, and possibly a second may arrive before the end of May."

Messrs. Workman, Clark have always had great success with work of this kind. The last conversion that they carried out was that of the United Fruit Company's steamer, La Maria, which was afterwards re-named Darien. This vessel was handled in 1930, when the original Diesel electric machinery installed in 1925 at Birkenhead was taken out and replaced by new turbo-electric machinery. On that occasion the vessel was cut in two and a new midship section, 27 feet long, built in.

The Darien is now one of the fastest vessels in the fruit trade between Boston and Central America, the conversion having proved most successful, and greatly increased the speed of the vessel.

EMPLOYMENT FOR SKILLED MEN.

An even more extensive contract of the kind carried out by Messrs. Workman, Clark was that of the Ellerman liner, City of Hong Kong (9579 tons). The vessel was the first to be fitted with turbo-electric combustion machinery of the type which it is intended to install in the four vessels coming to Belfast.

The new contract will give a considerable amount of employment, especially to skilled men.

Messrs. Workman, Clark are making steady progress with the building of two passenger and cargo motorships for Messrs. Andrew Weir and Co., and the number of men employed by them is steadily increasing.

MONEY-LENDERS ACT.

ALLEGED ABUSE IN PRACTICE.

BUSINESS DONE FROM IRELAND.

THE case of English money-lenders who have transferred their businesses to the Free State and Northern Ireland was the subject of a series of questions in the House of Commons on Thursday.

Mr. Rhys Davies (Labour) asked if the Home Secretary would appoint a small committee to report on the effectiveness, or otherwise, of the Money-lenders Act in checking the abuses of this business.

Mr. Hacking (Under-Secretary, Home Office) said that no information had come to his notice to suggest that any useful purpose would be served by that kind of inquiry. It ought to be generally known that the Money-lenders Act, 1927, provided that, where the interest charged exceeded the rate of 48 per cent. per annum, the Court should, unless the contrary was proved, presume that the interest charged was excessive, and that the transaction was harsh and unconscionable.

Mr. Rhys Davies—Is the Minister aware that from the very nature of the case the borrower cannot very well take the lender into court, and that because of that fact some of these money-lenders are treating this legislation with sheer contempt? If I provide him with evidence, will he keep a watchful eye on these unconscionable transactions?

Mr. Hacking—Certainly, we will. If the borrower is asked to pay more than 48 per cent., and if he refuses to pay more than 48 per cent., then the money-lender can sue him, and if the borrower can prove that it is a harsh transaction, he must take the consequences.

Mr. T. Griffiths (Lab., Pontypool) asked the Home Secretary if he was aware that many firms of money-lenders transferred their business to Ireland on the passing of the Money-lenders Act, and whether any amendment of the law was proposed to deal with their activities.

Mr. Hacking—I believe the position is substantially as indicated in the first part of the question, but I do not know how legislation in this country could deal with the activities of persons who are in another jurisdiction.

Mr. Griffiths—Is the Minister aware that this money is advanced from Ireland, and that they are prosecuting people in this country and wrecking their homes? Is it not possible for the Home Office to intervene in cases like that?

QUESTION OF PUBLICITY.

Mr. Hacking—We cannot intervene in the jurisdiction of another country. That is the difficulty.

Mr. Rhys Davies—Is it not possible to come to some arrangement with the Irish Free State and Ulster so as to prevent these people from treating the laws we pass with contempt by operating their business in Ireland?

Mr. Hacking—That is another question which will receive consideration.

Mr. Griffiths asked if the Home Secretary would consider amending the Money-lenders Act, with a view to making it an offence to publish the names of plaintiffs in actions for relief against alleged unconscionable rates of interest charged by money-lenders, having regard to the fact that the fear of publicity was the chief deterrent from taking action in court?

Mr. Hacking—I have no evidence before me to suggest that such a course is necessary or desirable.

Mr. Griffiths—I have shoals of letters where people are prepared to bring cases against money-lenders, provided that no publicity is given. Will the Minister look into that question?

Mr. Hacking—I should be glad if he would let me see some of these letters.

Mr. Griffiths—I have shoals of them, showing where homes have been wrecked.

PRESBYTERY FIRE SCENES.

PRIEST SEVERELY BURNED.

THE Presbytery, Wexford, one of the largest and the finest buildings in the town, and home of seven priests, was partially destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The outbreak was discovered by the Rev. Lawrence Allen, C.C., who found his bedroom filled with smoke and his sitting-room burning fiercely. Having given the alarm he succeeded in escaping before the exit was barred by flames.

The Rev. Martin O'Connor, C.C., whose bedroom was situated underneath Father Allen's, was awakened by the alarm to find that his rooms also were on fire. In endeavouring to remove a blazing armchair he was severely burned on the hands and feet.

The Fire Brigade, a party of Guards, and a number of townspeople were quickly on the scene. Realising that the wing, the roof of which collapsed, was doomed, they set to work to prevent the fire spreading to the main building.

Most of the furniture and many valuable books in the wing were destroyed.

OFFICER IN THE TOWER.

SENTENCE OF FIVE YEARS,

AND TO BE CASHIERED.

REMOVED TO CIVIL PRISON.

LIEUTENANT NORMAN BAILLIE-STEWART, of the Seaforth Highlanders, the "Officer in the Tower," who was tried by courtmartial last month on charges under the Official Secrets Acts, has been sentenced to five years' penal servitude, and cashiered from the Army.

The sentence was announced in a communiqué issued from the War Office on Thursday afternoon.

The communiqué adds that the King, acting on the advice of the Secretary of State for War, Lord Hailsham, confirmed the findings of the courtmartial on three charges of collecting information which might be useful to an enemy, and withheld confirmation of the findings on four other charges.

Lieutenant Baillie-Stewart will serve his sentence as an ordinary prisoner in a civil prison. He was removed from the Tower on Thursday.

The following is the text of the communiqué issued from the War Office:—

"At the general courtmartial held at the Duke of York's Headquarters, Chelsea, on March 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 27 and 28 for the trial of Lieutenant Norman Baillie-Stewart, Seaforth Highlanders, the court found the accused not guilty on the third, fifth and tenth (alternative) charges, but guilty on the first, second, fourth, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth charges.

"The court sentenced the accused to be cashiered and to suffer penal servitude for the term of five years.

SENTENCE CONFIRMED.

"His Majesty the King on the advice of the Secretary of State for War, has confirmed the findings of the court on the second, fourth and ninth charges, laid under Section 41 of the Army Act, of obtaining, collecting, and communicating information which might be useful to an enemy for a purpose prejudicial to the interest of the State, contrary to the provisions of the Official Secrets Acts, 1911 and 1920.

"Confirmation has been withheld by His Majesty from the findings of the court of the first, sixth, seventh and eighth charges which only relate to subsidiary incidents of the same transactions as form the subject of the second, fourth and ninth charges.

"His Majesty has confirmed the sentence of the court, and has directed that it be carried into effect."

TRIAL RECALLED.

Enormous interest was taken in the trial, and the stories told in evidence of Lieutenant Baillie-Stewart's friendship with a German girl, named Marie Louise (the only name he could give); his visits to her in Holland; his jaunts with her to the lakes near Berlin.

There were ten charges, to all of which Lieutenant Baillie-Stewart pleaded not guilty.

He was found not guilty on three charges—of attempting to obtain, attempting to collect, and attempting to communicate, information.

After the trial he returned to the quarters in the Tower which he had occupied before it, and where he awaited the findings of the Court.

WORMWOOD SCRUBS.

Arrangements for the detention of Lieutenant Baillie-Stewart during his term of imprisonment were made by the Prison Department of the Home Office at the instance of the military authorities.

After leaving the Tower it is understood that he was taken to Wormwood Scrubs. There, having been passed into the custody of the civil authorities, he was subjected to the usual routine through which each prisoner has to go on being admitted to prison.

Details were entered in the Governor's register, and for the time being he will remain at the prison.

As Wormwood Scrubs is principally reserved for the detention of prisoners sentenced to short terms, it is likely that he will be transferred within the next few days to a prison such as Maidstone, which is more suitable for dealing with men imprisoned for longer periods.

Like other convicts he will be questioned regarding his abilities, and a suitable task will be allotted to him.

"GRAVE DISORDER" FEARED.

NORTHERN MEETINGS BANNED.

The Northern Minister of Home Affairs (Sir Dawson Bates) published in the Belfast Gazette last night orders prohibiting the holding of meetings on Sunday, 16th April, at or near St. Patrick's Cemetery, Armagh; Milltown Cemetery, Belfast; St. Columb's Roman Catholic Church, Londonderry, or the Old Chapel Graveyard, Newry.

The orders are made under the Civil Authorities (Special Powers) Act, and state:—"There is reason to apprehend that such assembly of persons and the holding of such meetings and processions will give rise to grave disorder, and conduce to a breach of the peace, or will promote disaffection."

LATEST RAILWAY AGREEMENT.

DISCUSSED AT DUBLIN MEETING.

FROM OUR INDUSTRIAL CORRESPONDENT.

Messrs. C. D. Watters, Irish Secretary, and J. Campbell, Organising Secretary, National Union of Railwaymen, attended a meeting of the unofficial Strike Committee, which was held at the headquarters of the Union, 33 Parnell square, Dublin, on Thursday night.

No statement was issued at the conclusion of the conference, but it is understood that the agreement between Mr. Lemass and the strikers was discussed, and that Mr. Watters did not come to any decision as yet upon the suggestion that the Union should, in order to implement the first clause in the agreement, request the Minister to ask the companies to meet representatives to discuss again the question of holidays without pay. Mr. J. Murray and other representatives of the men will meet Mr. Watters again after the Easter holidays to examine the whole position.

The question of further negotiations is one for the Executive Committee of the two unions concerned, but a recommendation from the Irish officials would probably be put into effect in view of the strong feelings expressed by the rank and file on the subject.

Interviewed after the meeting, the chairman of the committee pointed out that the second clause in the agreement will be carried out by the Minister, and that it differs from the first clause inasmuch that it does not require to be implemented in any way by action on the part of the unions. The Minister had given an undertaking that he will take up with the companies the question of a minimum wage below which the "cuts" will not operate, but here again it is possible that the unions will be asked to negotiate upon the question of where the minimum should be fixed.

MISHAP TO GIRL FLIER.

JOURNEY BY CAMEL AFTER CRASH.

CAPTAIN LANCASTER LOST IN SAHARA.

A TALE of mishaps and misfortunes is told by the latest reports of the big flights which started or were progressing during the week. The captains—Lancaster, Robiano (the Italian), and Bertram (the German)—have all encountered trouble on their various "record" attempts, according to Reuter reports.

Bertram and Robiano are battling on again, but nothing has been heard of Captain Lancaster since he left Reggan on Wednesday night, and he is now missing somewhere in the Sahara.

Miss Batten has come to grief, and she reached Karachi by motor lorry at 6 o'clock last night.

A car has been sent out by the Trans-Saharienne Company from Reggan to search for Captain Lancaster. An earlier report stated that Captain Lancaster after encountering sandstorms, had left Aoulef, about sixty miles east of Reggan, at 11.10 a.m. on Wednesday.

Robiano, after being held up for two days in Persia owing to difficulties arising from his not being able to speak the language, and then encountering petrol tank and engine trouble, left Karachi at 1.25 a.m. yesterday for Calcutta, where he arrived at 3.20 p.m. to refuel before leaving for Rangoon. He had been impeded by heavy rain, and left again at 10.30 p.m.

MISS BATTEN UNDAUNTED.

Looking very weary and burnt with the sun, but still undaunted after a forced landing in the desert and a remarkable seventy miles' journey by camel and motor lorry, Miss Jean Batten, the New Zealand airwoman, who was flying from England to Australia, proposes to return to the scene of her mishap with a new propeller for her machine, and afterwards continue her flight.

In an interview with Reuter's Karachi Correspondent, Miss Batten explained that, leaving Bushire at midnight on Wednesday, she flew by moonlight to Jask, where she landed for an hour. After Jask the weather changed, and she ran into such a violent sandstorm that for a time she was flying blind just above the ground. Finally she landed in a field in the Baluchi village of Lakheri, where, while taxi-ing along the 'plane tipped up and buried its nose in the mud. The propeller split and further flight was impossible.

She was immediately surrounded by interested Baluchis, and by their help she was able to procure a camel, on which she rode for six hours to the nearest town, Bali. From Bali to Karachi Miss Batten completed her exhausting journey by motor lorry.

As Captain Bertram was taking off from Allahabad on Thursday the undercarriage of his aeroplane struck a fence, but despite this he is fighting on to reach Berlin from Sourabaya by Sunday, and so accomplish the journey in less than six days. He left Jodhpur at 3.30 yesterday morning and landed at Karachi at 7.15 a.m. After a halt of one hour for taking petrol he took off for Bushire.

FROM "THE TIMES."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

COURTMARTIAL SENTENCE.

The Times, in a leading article to-day on the sentence of Lieutenant Baillie-Stewart, says:—There is no appeal from the decision, and Lord Darling's Committee, which considered the subject after the war, has explained why a formal procedure of appeal would be inappropriate and superfluous to courtmartial proceedings. Quite apart from the duty of scrupulous care for the interests of the accused expressly laid upon the prosecution, all courtmartial proceedings are subject automatically to review, and, in addition, the accused has the right of petition, which has been exercised in this case. The intrinsic fairness of courtmartial proceedings is unquestioned.

What is more open to question in the present case is whether, as it has turned out, the externals of the trial were the best adapted to the public interest. Part of the proceedings, including evidence on the utility to the foreign Government of the information collected, was necessarily taken in camera. In the administration of justice something is to be said for complete secrecy and something for complete publicity. Granted that the publicity in the present case, involving trial in London, was in the interest of the accused, while the secrecy was dictated by the public interest, the resulting chiaroscuro has had a disconcerting effect, since the whole trial could only minister to cravings for sensationalism. But most lamentable of all is that the conduct of an officer should have required this investigation, and should have led to the result now announced. The case is unique in the annals of the Army, and likely to remain so. In the last analysis that is, perhaps, all that need be said.

DUBLIN CATTLE MARKET.

SLUMP CAUSED BY TARIFFS.

As one result of the new British tariff on Free State cattle, and also because of the fact that supplies of Canadian cattle will be available in Britain in large numbers up to the end of June, there was a big slump in the cattle trade at Dublin market on Thursday. Very few lots were sold for export.

Outside prime handy-weight heifers, of which there was a scarcity owing to the railway strike, prices for cattle were lower all round by from 10s. to 30s. per head. Middling cattle were almost unsaleable, many not being even looked at by potential buyers.

There was a fair trade for lambs, which made from 30s. to 33s. per head for fancy, with nice lots ranging from 25s. to 30s., and small lambs from 15s. to 20s.

GERMANY RESENTS CRITICISM.

AMBASSADOR ORDERED TO PROTEST

AGAINST SPEECHES IN THE COMMONS.

SIR A. CHAMBERLAIN AND THE JEWS.

THE German Ambassador in London has been instructed to lodge an immediate protest against the references made to Germany in the course of speeches by Sir Austen Chamberlain and Mr. Churchill, in the House of Commons on Thursday last.

As Sir John Simon (Foreign Secretary) is out of town, however, it is understood that no action can be taken before Tuesday next.

The Ambassador's instructions are reported to have followed German official conferences with Herr Hitler and Baron von Neurath.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, in the course of Thursday's debate on the adjournment of the House of Commons, referred to the new spirit in Germany as "the worst of the old Prussian imperialism, with an added savagery of pride and exclusiveness which cannot allow to any fellow-subject, not of pure Nordic birth, equality of rights or citizenship within the country to which they belong."

Mr. Churchill and Sir Herbert Samuel also denounced the persecution of the Jews in Germany.

Sir John Simon, in his reply, reminded the House that the Government would not consider itself clothed with authority to intervene in the affairs of another country.

It is understood that, Sir Austen Chamberlain and Mr. Churchill being private members, the Government does not regard itself as being responsible for their expressions of sympathy.

PREMIER'S AMERICAN VISIT.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

WESTMINSTER, Thursday.

On the motion for the adjournment of the Commons to-day, Major Attlee invited the Prime Ministar to make a statement on the proposed Four-Power Pact, and to give the House some indication of the business which was taking him to the United States. He suggested that it was no use going to America with a doctor's mandate and bringing back nothing more than a bottle of soothing syrup.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Ramsay Macdonald) dealt first with what was known as the Four-Power Pact, and said that all the hostile criticism of it proceeded on pure assumption. So far as any revision of existing treaties was concerned, it would be a revision for peace, and in that revision the small Powers would have just as much say as the large Powers.

Referring to his projected visit to America, he said that the issue was very simple. It related to the debt payments, and suggestions had been made from both sides that no agreement could be reached without personal interviews. It was not merely a question of experts, because these debt payments had a very important political effect, and a settlement of the debt question acceptable to both sides would be one of the greatest blessings that could happen. He might say that it was not proposed to come to any agreements in America. The object of the visit was to have mutual talks, and endeavour to understand one another's views. If that field could be thoroughly explored, a great deal of good work would be done. The Cabinet would then be in a position to make up its mind as to how it would propose to handle the payment due on the 15th June.

As regarded the line of approach to the Conference, he shared the experts' view that no great result could be obtained unless a large part of the obstructions which had been raised in the way of international trade had been removed. (Hear, hear.) The reduction of tariff walls was obviously a problem which might be settled in a temporary way between two bargaining countries, but if they were to have the benefit of a general world policy, it could only be as the result of discussions and decisions on the part of conferences such as they were now considering. But the problem could not be faced from the old point of view. He would endeavour to get the relationship between America and this country established on a basis of a most cordial and co-operative character. If he succeeded in doing that, his mission would not be a failure.

THE LESSON OF GERMANY.

SIR A. CHAMBERLAIN'S CRITICISM.

Sir Austen Chamberlain said that he rejoiced that the Prime Minister was going to meet the new President of the United States. Among the various foreign missions conducted by the Prime Minister, none, perhaps, was more fruitful than his previous visit to another American President. He would carry with him on this visit the good-will of the House and the country. (Cheers.) The speech of the Prime Minister was a curious one. The major portion of it was devoted to a description of the character to be attached to, and the subjects to be treated at, conversations which had not yet taken place. But, of the conversations which had taken place, and which had been the concern of every nation of Europe and every Government and of this House ever since, he had told them no more that day than he did on his return from Rome.

"Frankly," he said, "I view the present situation with grave anxiety. I think that the position in Europe, the state of public opinion, the actions of Governments are more menacing to-day, and are threatening peace more directly than anything since the close of the Great War. I cannot pretend to conceal from my right hon. friend the state of uncertainty in which the world has been left as to what actually was proposed or agreed to at Rome."

"INOPPORTUNE."

"What has passed in Germany seems to me to render this a singularly inopportune moment to talk about revision of treaties. (Cheers.) And I must say there is little good in talking about revision of treaties while the originators of the conversations repudiate, each on his own behalf, any idea that the concessions are to come from them.

"What is this new spirit of German nationalism? The worst of the old Prussian Imperialism, with an added savagery—(cheers)—pride and exclusiveness, no subject not of pure Nordic birth to have equality of rights and citizenship in the nation to which they belong. Are you going to discuss revision with a Government like that. (Loud cheers.) Are you going to discuss with them the Polish corridor? The Polish corridor is inhabited by Poles. Will you dare to put another Pole under the heel of such a Government? (Cheers.) I beg the Prime Minister to beware of what he is doing. After all, we stand for something in this country. (Cheers.)

"As [illegible] Germany is affected by this narrow, exclusive spirit, which says that it is a crime to be in favour of peace, and a crime to be a Jew, that is not a Germany to which we can afford to make concessions. (Cheers.) Before you can disarm, or urge others to disarm, you must see a Germany whose mind is turned to peace, who will use her equality of status, not to menace the safety of others, and a Germany which has learned not only how to live itself, but to let others live inside it and beside it. (Loud cheers.)

MR. CHURCHILL'S REMINDER.

Mr. Churchill said that he believed that the debate should do something to steady the situation. There had of late years been a great deal of denunciation of the Treaties of Versailles and Trianon, but much of it was exaggerated. Those treaties were founded on the principle of nationalisation, or self-determination, the strongest principle alive to-day. Over the whole area of Middle and Eastern Europe that principle of nationalisation has been applied.

Germany had got off lightly after the War. Facts repudiated the idea that a Carthagenian peace was imposed upon Germany. It had been said that we could not keep a great nation like Germany in an inferior position, but that was a most dangerous admission to make. As surely as Germany acquired full military equality with her neighbours, whilst her own grievances were still unredressed, and while she was in the temper we had unhappily seen, we should see ourselves within measurable distance of a general European war. Without desiring to use harsh words against Germany, the fact remained that she had a ruthless dictatorship. When he read of what was going on in Germany and the temper displayed there, he thanked God they had not the heavy cannon, the thousands of military aeroplanes, and the tanks for which she had been pressing in order to have an equality of status with other countries.

It might be virtuous and right-minded to press disarmament upon the nations, but it should be done in the right way, and in due season, or it might bring war nearer instead of peace. Of all times, this was not the time to make such a proposal with any prospect of success, and, secondly, nothing could be more unsuitable than to combine the Four-Power Pact with the disarmament proposals. This double policy would exaggerate suspicion and involve us even more in the Continental situation.

SIR JOHN SIMON'S REPLY.

Sir John Simon opened his reply with the statement on the Moscow trial which appeared under the caption, "The O.G.P.U.'s Third Degree," and then, referring to the persecution of Jews in Germany, he said that the civil liberty on which the progress of nations depended was menaced by the state of things to which the attention of the House had been called. Recent events in Germany had caused the Government grave concern, and had presented them with special problems. One was that a considerable number of people were leaving Germany, and applying for permission to enter England. The Home Secretary had already told the House that no unnecessary obstacles would be placed in the way of foreigners seeking to come here, but that first consideration must be given to our own citizens. Another problem affecting the British Government arose because, as holding the mandate for Palestine, we had a special responsibility towards the Palestinian Jews, and those who wished to move to that part of the world. He was authorised by the High Commissioner for Palestine to say that he had authorised an advance issue of one thousand certificates for distribution to Jewish men and women of the labouring classes in Germany on account of the half-year commencing the 1st of April. There would be a reduction of capital regulations for other classes, and special consideration would be given for the immigration of the parents and relatives in Germany of German Jews already settled in Palestine.

Referring to the Four-Power Pact, he said that His Majesty's Government must be absolved from any responsibility for using any such phrase as "The Pact of Rome." There was no question in the discussion of the four Powers of imposing their will upon others. They had not discussed changes of boundaries, but they were considering whether it would be desirable to enter into a written agreement which would secure a mutual assurance of actual co-operation for peace, and whether it was desirable to apply some method of providing for certain of the more intractable problems which faced Europe.

The House adjourned until April 25th.

THE MOSCOW PROSECUTION.

tradicted Monkhouse's evidence, giving the names of numerous other sources whence information had been received.

Whether secret information was given was not apparent from the evidence.

"IT'S ALL NONSENSE."

DEPOSITION READ IN COURT.

That portion of Thornton's deposition was then read out:—"All our spying operations in the U.S.S.R. have been carried on through Mr. Richards, myself and Mr. Monkhouse, under the instructions of Mr. Richards. The British personnel was gradually drawn in to a spying organisation after their arrival in the U.S.S.R. The total British staff of twenty-eight men, including Messrs. Thornton, MacDonald, Cushny and Gregory, were engaged in economic and political spying."

Vishinsky—Do you admit writing that?—Yes, but I want to retract it all. When I wrote it, it was all the same to me what I wrote. It's all nonsense.

Vishinsky—What do you understand by spying information?—The discovery of official secrets in an illegal way. I now say that what I signed was untrue, and written under moral pressure after a long interrogation.

Have you any desire to commit acts of wrecking or sabotage?—I have always built, and never destroyed. I never paid Cushny any money for any information.

Monkhouse, called to give evidence, said: "I am not guilty of any crimes except that knowledge of the three thousand roubles handed to Dolgov, which were more in the nature of a bribe than a loan. I supposed that these roubles were given for the advancement of the firm's interests, because Dolgov was a member of the Commission of Experts. The document I signed concerning the bribery of Dolgov was not written by me."

"SECRET BOOKS."

As the sitting drew to an end Thornton was facing the charges more and more firmly. He engaged in a brilliant duel with the prosecution, and this, together with Monkhouse's straightforwardness and his occasional interpellations, created a very favourable impression among foreign observers.

Monkhouse's defence Attorney called on Gusev and Sokolov, who testified that they did not know Monkhouse and had not had dealings with him of any kind.

Madame Kutuzova, when called, said that she was friendly with Thornton because he had no other friends. She said that Monkhouse and Thornton committed espionage, and had secret books and documents which were taken to England by Thornton.

The proceedings for the day terminated at 10.15 p.m.

YESTERDAY'S HEARING.

MONKHOUSE QUESTIONS A WITNESS.

MOSCOW, Friday.

Good Friday, a day of rest and prayer in most parts of the world, found Moscow going sternly about its business; for, although many peasants and townsfolk flocked to the churches in order to hear superb singing by picked choirs, devotional exercises are officially frowned upon and insistence is laid on the fact that to-day is a full working day just like any other. Consequently when the trial of the British engineers was resumed at 10.20 this morning the attendance was small and the courtroom only half full.

The point which emerges most strongly from yesterday's proceedings is the insistence of the British defendants on the "expediency" of their alleged confessions.

In spite of Macdonald's denial of his guilt, the judges consider that his original plea of guilty to the charges of bribery, sabotage and espionage still holds good.

BRIBE OR A LOAN?

The main issue before the Court to-day was the question of whether the sum of 3,000 roubles given to Dolgov, a member of the Experts' Commission, in the summer of 1932 was a bribe or a loan.

Dolgov, in the witness box, said:—"Thornton called me into his room, took 3,000 roubles from a drawer and offered them to me. I decided that if Thornton wanted to corrupt me—a Soviet engineer—I would take the money to the Procurator, which I did. I was working with the Expert Commission. I am very conscientious, and I know where to stop conversations with foreigners."

Dolgov's protestation of virtuous righteousness made a good impression on the Court, especially his remark that he regarded the 3,000 roubles as a bribe to conceal a defect in the machinery being installed.

Thornton, cross-examined on Dolgov's evidence, explained the transaction as a loan at Dolgov's request for the purpose of buying an apartment for himself.

"Have you a receipt?" he was asked.

"No," said Thornton. "Dolgov said it was not necessary, and he promised to return the money."

NEVER REPAID.

Monkhouse was then called, and he fully confirmed Thornton as to the character of the transaction. It was a loan, he said, which was never repaid, and it had eventually to be written off as a gift.

The next witness was Kotliarevski, the head of the turbine department at Zouievka, a blue-jowled saturnine young man, with bottle shoulders and a vacuous expression.

"I made friends with Macdonald at Zouievka," said Kotliarevski, "because I am fond of music and felt alone, and Macdonald had a gramaphone and records. I gave him blue-prints of the Zouievka station, and he asked me to keep quiet about defects in the Metropolitan-Vickers machinery, and to wreck generator No. 3. So I threw in a bolt and wrecked the motor."

Macdonald, called, said that he knew that Kotliarevski had wrecked the generator.

Kotliarevski, continuing, said—"I received a thousand roubles from Macdonald for wrecking the generator."

An admission by the witness that he had neglected the oil pumps brought Monkhouse, the company's chief engineer, to his feet to ask, "Did you tell anyone that the pumps were defective?"—

Kotliarevski—No.

Monkhouse—Why then did Metropolitan-Vickers cable from Zouievka to Moscow asking for new pumps, which were subsequently sent out from England?

BOLT STILL MISSING.

Monkhouse then pointed out that a bolt was missing from the generator casing, and suggested that it had fallen, and not been thrown, into the motor. The Expert Commission, he pointed out, had said that it had not found the bolt.

This is the first time that one of the defendants has questioned a witness.

After giving inclusive evidence under Monkhouse's cross-examination, Kotliarevski left the box and was succeeded by Lobanov, a tall, intellectual type, with an egg-shaped, shaven head.

Lobanov gave evidence as to his acquaintance with Nordwall, whom, he said, he had first met in a train on the way to the Ivanova Power Station in 1930. Lobanov told Nordwall that he was hard up, and alleged that Nordwall had told him to wreck, first, small things, and later, the Metropolitan-Vickers plant, so that the Metropolitan-Vickers Co. should not be blamed.

Lobanov said that he had wrecked and burned out the motors of the dynamos, transformers and telephone system.

His evidence was corroborated by his friend Lebedieff, who said: "Yes; we all did that." Lebedieff said that he had received small sums from Lobanov, who said that he had received 5,000 roubles from Nordwall.

Another friend, Kitaev, said, "I wouldn't join them, because I was already engaged in sabotage. Nordwall told me that in the event of war it would be necessary to blow up the whole station and the dam."

INFORMATION AT PARTIES.

Lebedev presented a pitiful figure in the box. With tired and colourless face he told in halting tones the tale of his connection with Metropolitan-Vickers, and admitted wrecking dynamos at Ivanovo-Vosnesensk, 200 miles north-east of Moscow, with sand and water, on the instructions of Lobanov.

Lebedev said that he had met Mr. Elliot (a former Metropolitan-Vickers employé, now mentioned for the first time) at Ivanovo. Military information was discussed at parties at Lebedev's house. This information was received from one Baldin, a worker in the military department. Lebedev added that he had received 250 roubles from Lobanov for wrecking.

The Prosecutor here called on Thornton, and asked him, "Do you admit the evidence in the indictment as to receiving information from Mr. Elliot?"

Thornton replied, "I do."

Nordwall, called into the witness-box beside Lobanov, denied all the charges made against him. He said: "This evidence is absolutely untrue. I did not bribe, and I did not plot against the Soviet."

PRICE OF A FUR COAT.

He was submitted to a gruelling cross-examination by Vishinsky. To all questions he answered emphatically: "I had no conversations about sabotage; I gave no instructions; and I never gave any money."

Lobanov—I got 5,000 roubles from him and a fur coat.

Nordwall explained that one of the company's engineers, Mr. Taylor, who was leaving Russia, had left an overcoat for Lobanov, who had paid Nordwall 500 roubles for it. "My wife and Mr. Taylor are my witnesses," said Nordwall. "I received the money next day, and paid it to Taylor through an English bank."

Vishinsky pointed out that Nordwall, in his examination, had said that he had received only 400 roubles for the overcoat, which he had given to Mr. Taylor the same day and had entered it in his books. Vishinsky made a great deal of play with these apparent contradictions, and hammered home the fact that Nordwall had been inconsistent in his evidence.

After the three hours adjournment Nordwall was again in the box. He made an excellent impression by his curt, decisive answers.

"I was a shock brigader (picked workman) at Kustnetak," he explained.

"Did you have trouble at Motovilikha?"

MISTAKE IN THE PLANS.

In his reply Nordwall referred to a mistake in erecting a turbine, and then Oleinik, one of the Russian employés of Metropolitan-Vickers, was asked: "Do you confirm that?"

"Nordwall was to blame. He overlooked a mistake in the blue prints," he said.

"I did not notice any mistake, nor did the Expert Commission," replied Nordwall. "It is untrue that I was pleased with the accidents."

A Russian named Siebert was then called into the witness box. He talked so much that he frequently had to be silenced by the judges.

He said that he had never worked for Metropolitan-Vickers, but was friendly with Mr. Thornton and liked him very much.

"Thornton told me," he said, "that there was no need to examine the Metropolitan-Vickers machinery too closely, because it was all good stuff. So I told him about defects in the switches, which slowed up the work generally. Thornton thanked me and handed over three hundred roubles."

BONUS FOR GOOD WORK.

At this point Mr. Thornton stood up:—"I don't admit it," he said. "I gave him 250 roubles as a bonus because he did his work well." Siebert then said that he had started sabotaging because he respected Thornton very much and believed all he said.

He added: "As soon as Mr. Gregory came to Dnieprostroi he started counter-Soviet propaganda."

Mr. Gregory was then called.

Gregory, who has been in Russia eighteen months, caused a stir among the Diplomatic and Press stands when he declared: "This man Siebert insults and injures my reputation, and the judge accepts his word without question. Is this justice?"

Judge Ulrich stopped him, saying: "Limit yourself to facts; your time is coming."

GOOD WORK.

Gregory then continued:—I went to Dnieprostroi in order to set up the oil switches. I was very careful, in order to keep our reputation."

Then, turning to the commission of experts sitting in the corner of the courtroom, he said:—"I erected three switches weighing 45 tons each in 48 days. I must leave it to them (the experts) to say whether that's good or not."

Gregory caused great amusement among the British members of the public present by several of his remarks, which had to be made through an interpreter.

When accused of counter-revolutionary propaganda among the Russian workers by saying that British workers had a better time, he replied: "Perhaps, but I can't speak Russian. It took me all my time to teach them what to do. Besides, I'm not interested in politics."

Sukhoroutchvin, deputy head engineer of the Moscow Electrical Station, and one of the accused Russians, when called, said that he had received 2,500 roubles from Thornton for sabotage, and was instructed during conversations to paralyse the electrical industry in case of war by wrecking the key stations.

A PLAN FOR WAR.

He said that if he wrecked the Moscow station it would dislocate the radio stations, the Kremlin, the aerodromes and aeroplane factories and munition plants.

"Thornton and I made a plan," he said.

Thornton was then called. "I visited the Moscow station," he said, "but the conversations mentioned did not take place. I did not give him any money."

Sukhoroutchvin added: "Thornton told me to cause breakdowns. A breakdown occurred in the transformer group because there was no oil in the oil switches, and Thornton ordered the current to be switched on, though he knew there was no oil."

The Court rose at 10 p.m., the hearing being brought to a close by Sukhoroutchvin's admission, "I think if I had not met Thornton I would not have taken the first step along the path leading to this court."

THE ECONOMIES BILL.

DUBLIN GUARDS' PAY REDUCED.

On last Thursday the "cut" in pay was put into operation in the Dublin Metropolitan Division of the Civic Guard without any warning, and while the Representative Body was still considering the matter. The "cut" that has been made is in respect of the first week of the month ending the 8th inst. In other divisions of the Guards the men are paid monthly, so that the "cut" in their case will not operate until May 1st. Thus the statement made that the Guards would be "cut" only in respect of eleven months of the year does not appear to be correct as far as the Dublin Metropolitan Division is concerned.

Much dissatisfaction, it is said, has been caused by the premature operation of the provisions of the bill.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

IRELAND IN MAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I think it would be beneficial to this country if an advertising campaign were inaugurated in respect of "Ireland in May." Possibly the idea is not new, but no active campaign on this matter has been started. Obviously Ireland is at its best in May. The weather is usually fine. The landscape-colouring is at its best and much superior to what we find in the later summer. This applies equally to the sky, the barren mountains and to the fresh green of the fields and woods. Young lambs, primroses, fresh blooms, long evenings and many of the most artistic expressions of what Ireland can offer to the tourist abound in May.

Commercially, an early tourist season has double advantages. It lengthens the period at the best end, and it advertises, through the medium of the early trippers, the beauties and advantages of travel in Ireland for those who may come in July and August. In practice, an early season in Ireland should have many inducements. It should appeal to those who cannot get holidays in July or August, because their superior officers or employers claim the privilege of taking holidays then. Also, charges are not so high in May as in August. Those who ordinarily take holidays elsewhere in May might be induced to come here on the grounds of comparative inexpensiveness. This suggests special May excursions and attractions. It also suggests broadcasting, from now onwards, through Fécamp, Paris and other broadcasting stations, of the advantages of Ireland for a May holiday.

I believe that no better expenditure of the funds of the Irish Tourist Development Association could now be made, and that no better improvement in the organisation of tourist traffic in this country could now be undertaken.—Yours, etc.,

FREE STATE HOSPITALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—In his report to the Dublin Board of Assistance on the question of hospital accommodation, published yesterday, Dr. A. S. ffrench O'Carroll, F.R.C.S.I., Lucan, expressed surprise that in the Irish Free State no effort had been made to treat adults suffering from surgical tuberculosis on modern lines and in a separate building for that purpose outside the City of Dublin, as is actually done in the case of children at Cappagh. Lest any misconception should arise from this statement, we desire to point out that the need for hospital accommodation of the type contemplated by Dr. O'Carroll has for some years past engaged the attention of the authorities of Our Lady of Lourdes Hospital, under the care of the Sisters of Mercy at The Cedars, Rochestown avenue, Dean's Grange, County Dublin, and it was recently decided to erect a suitable building, where adults will receive the most up-to-date treatment for tubercular bone disease.

No better site could be found for such a hospital than the one selected. It will be ideally situated between the mountains and the sea, with glorious panoramic views of the Vale of Shanganagh and the Dublin Mountains. Within half a dozen miles of the city and a mile of Dun Laoghaire and Blackrock, it is excellently served by tram and omnibus, so that friends of the patients can visit them without inconvenience.

The scheme of extension and development, adopted after mature consideration by the representatives of the hospital and their technical advisers, could only be brought to fruition by the raising of a large sum of money; but, happily this difficulty has been overcome by a successful appeal to the Minister for Justice for inclusion in the list of hospitals participating in the benefits of the Hospitals' Sweepstakes. The scheme has been provisionally passed by the Committee of Reference, and, in view of the pressing need for such an institution in the Free State, it is confidently hoped that the authorities will complete their investigations and sanction the commencement of building operations at an early date. It will, doubtless, be good news for those city patients whom Dr. O'Carroll has in mind that ample facilities for the treatment of their disease will soon be available.—Yours, etc.,

ROBB AND BARRE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—May I make an inquiry in your columns, on behalf of an American friend, for information as to an Isaac Barré (or Barry), who lived in Dublin in the eighteenth century, and was a member of Grattan's Parliament? He came of a French family, which came to Ireland after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. His daughter, Margaret, married a James Robb, a merchant and shipowner, of Newtownards, in County Down. They had a son, David Robb, who was born in 1771. About that time James Robb and his wife went to America, and settled in Indiana, probably leaving their baby behind with the Barrys. James Robb is said to have been involved in a Customs prosecution, and was imprisoned, but he escaped, and fled to America.

I should be very much obliged for information as to either family. Is there anything about either family in the Journal of the Society of Antiquaries?—Yours, etc.,

SUMMER TIME.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Though "summer time" is merely a way of humbugging people into getting their work done earlier in the day, and is compulsory for only those whose hours are regulated by law, may I appeal to country people, especially priests and nuns, to use it? That does not mean that church Services or schools should begin earlier than is locally convenient. For example, if 8 a.m. "summer time" is too early for Mass in the country, priests are free to have it at 8.30 or 9. In fact, they do, but they make needless confusion by calling it 7.30 or 8 "old time."

The result is that country people have to keep two sorts of time—"old time" for church; "summer time" for trains, the post office, the bank, and the public-house. That they are eminently capable of doing so is clear; for they are just as punctual as townspeople at church, at the railway station, and, on occasion, at the public-house. Yet even among these alert folk appointments are uncertain; for the watch of one may be set by the post office clock, and that of another by the Angelus bell.—Yours, etc.,

HOUSING IN WEXFORD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—The Wexford County Council has increased the county poor rate by 2s. 0½d. in the £. The New Ross Urban Council had three vacant houses at Ard na Greine to let at their recent meeting. There was only one applicant. One member, Mr. J. Moran, said that there would before long be four vacant, and, may be, five, to which the Town Clerk replied, "There is no use in advertising them."

In connection with the report at the same meeting, as appears in the local Press, there is a paragraph headed, "The New Housing Scheme." This paragraph reads thus:—"The Minister wrote sanctioning the scheme for the erection of fourteen houses passed by the Council and requesting them to issue tenders without delay."—Yours, etc.,

POINTS IN RUGBY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I was much interested in reading the letter of Canon Harvey in your issue of the 5th inst., received here in Hamburg to-day, and I sincerely trust that some notice will be taken by the officials of the International Board on this most important point, which is so vital to Rugby football, as it is now played. Over here, where the game is becoming popular, the question of the value of four points for a dropped goal is more often discussed than anything else connected with the game. Personally, from a player's point of view—and an old one at that—I would welcome the suggestion that the dropped goal should be cancelled. It is very unfair that a team should be awarded a game by this method of scoring, because generally this way of scoring is the last resort to pull off the game when a very stern defence has been made—which, to the average spectator, is part of the ideal game.

So far as the conversion of a try, the goal from a mark, and a penalty are concerned, I am of the opinion that they are about equal for points, and that no change is needed.—Yours, etc.,

DUBLIN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

THE ROAD TRANSPORT BILL.

At the monthly meeting of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, held with Mr. H. M. Dockrell, T.D., in the chair, Mr. Edgar Anderson, M.A., B.A.I., was appointed to represent the Dun Laoghaire employers on the Dublin Advisory Committee for Juvenile Employment.

Tuesday, the 30th May, was fixed as the date for the May ordinary general meeting of the Chamber.

The Council were glad to learn that the Minister is making perfectly clear in the Road Transport Bill that a trader will at all times be free to collect his own goods in his own vehicles, and also be able to deliver his goods to his customers without requiring any licence to do so.

The Council considered the National Health Insurance Bill and a memorandum on the Local Authorities Combined Purchasing Act.

The Council also received from the Association of Chambers of Commerce of the Irish Free State a report on the evidence tendered to the Civil Service Commission by Mr. J. C. M. Eason, B.A., O.B.E., and also a report on the deputation to Mr. de Valera as acting Minister for Finance.

In the unavoidable absence of Mr. R. W. Sinnott, the President of the Association, Mr. D. J. Cogan, Vice-President, led the deputation, which was introduced to Mr. de Valera by Mr. John Good, T.D. Other representatives present were: Messrs. J. R. Smith, President, Drogheda Chamber of Commerce; E. Stevenson, President, Limerick Chamber of Commerce; H. M. Dockrell, President, Dublin Chamber of Commerce; E. McArdle (Drogheda), A. Goodwin (Limerick), J. J. Macken (Mullingar), A. H. Henderson (Sligo), J. Gilbride (Sligo), M. Cassin (Waterford), G. N. Jacob (Dublin), E. Anderson (Dublin), T. J. Smalley (Dublin), Alderman J. Hubbard Clark (Dublin), J. C. M. Eason (Dublin), G. Brock (Dublin).

They were attended by Mr. J. McLoghry, Secretary of the Sligo Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. J. R. Clark, Secretary of the Association.

OBITUARY.

THE REV. GEORGE F. MOORE.

The death took place recently at Oak Lodge, Teignmouth, England, of the Rev. George F. Moore. After he had graduated at Dublin University in 1898, Mr. Moore studied at Wells Theological College, Gloucestershire, and was ordained in the Bristol diocese in 1902. He was curate of Box and Colerne, and later of Ringwood until 1907, when he was made Rector of Shalstone, where he remained until his retirement, in 1922.

LADY HENRIETTA GRADWELL.

The death took place on Thursday last in London of Lady Henrietta Maria Gradwell, of Dowth Hall, Drogheda, an aunt of the present Earl of Fingall. Born in 1861, Lady Henrietta Plunkett was the youngest daughter of the tenth Earl of Fingall, and married, in 1884, Mr. Robert B. G. Gradwell, J.P., who was High Sheriff for County Meath in 1892.

MR. P. A. WREN.

The death took place on Wednesday last at his residence, Brighton avenue, Rathgar, Dublin, of Mr. P. A. Wren, a well-known resident and business man. For upwards of forty years Mr. Wren carried on the business of auctioneer at Bachelor's Walk, retiring about eight years ago. He, however, shortly afterwards entered business as a house agent. He is survived by his widow.

CHRIST CHURCH, LEESON PARK, DUBLIN.

Maunder's sacred cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," was sung with expression and sincerity to a large congregation by an augmented choir at Christ Church, Leeson Park, Dublin, last night. The soloists were Miss Nancy Guthrie, Mr. Robert McCullagh, Miss Doreen Horne, and Mr. Thompson Dawson. The choir's singing showed a depth of feeling, which spoke of careful and painstaking tutelage, and formed a melodious background to the expressive singing of the soloists.

STAINER'S "CRUCIFIXION."

Last night, before a large congregation, Stainer's "Crucifixion" was beautifully rendered by an augmented choir at St. Matthias's Church, Adelaide road, Dublin. The soloists were Mr. Victor Cole (tenor), Mr. Frank Cowle (bass), Mrs. Hunt (soprano), and Miss Colclough (alto), and they performed their parts with marked skill and intense feeling, singing the quartet, "God so loved the world," with special fervour. Mr. Cowle's singing of "The Agony" was an artistic triumph, and Mr. Cole's interpretation of "The Majesty of Divine Humiliation" was also well worthy of special mention. The well-balanced choir sang with harmony and dramatic expression, and showed a strong appreciation of the theme throughout. Mr. William J. Watson, A.R.C.O., at the organ, gave the work a true and sympathetic rendering, and also played, in addition, as a voluntary Parry's beautiful prelude on the hymn tune, sung to the words, "O, come and mourn with Me awhile."

BANK OF ENGLAND RETURN.

FALL IN THE DEPOSITS.

The largest movement shown by Thursday's Bank of England return is recorded by bankers' deposits, which have fallen by nearly £21,000,000 to £88,663,327. Government securities in the banking department also show a large fall of £14,120,000 to £68,859,505, which compares with the corresponding figure last year of £55,385,905. Public deposits have risen by £3,888,727 to £17,971,689, and private deposits by £599,787 to £35,095,269. The security items of the issue department are little changed on the week.

A feature of the return is the further increase of £1,976,079 in the Bank's total holding of coin and bullion, making the total £179,336,484, as against £121,448,645 a year ago. The gold holding in the issue department now stands at the record high figure for all time of £178,510,972. Holiday demands for currency have resulted in an expansion of £4,701,073 in the active note circulation to £376,370,433, which is £19,617,378 greater than at this time last year. During the week preceding the Easter holiday last year the note increase was £5,121,501. Consequent upon the increased note circulation and the rise in the gold stock, the Bank's reserve has dropped by £2,724,994 to £52,966,051, which is £23,270,461 more than a year ago. As a result mainly of the net fall in deposits, the proportion of reserve to liabilities now stands at 44.4 per cent., as against 41.5 per cent. last week and 32.1 per cent. last year.

Week ended Wednesday, April 12th, 1933.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

COMMODITIES STIMULATE PRICES: FIRM CLOSE.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Thursday.

All the United States markets and the Canadian exchanges will be closed on Friday, April 14. The New York Cotton, Coffee, Sugar, Rubber, Cocoa and Cottonoil markets, the National Metal Exchange and the New Orleans Cotton market will remain closed on Saturday, April 15.

The higher trend of commodities again influenced the Stock market, an advance of fractions to 3 points being general at the close. Dealings were more than double those of yesterday at 1,660,000 shares. The market opened steady. The imminence of the Easter holiday tended to restrict trading, but prices during the morning improved fractions to about 1 point under the leadership of the Industrial group. Rails kept steady, Norfolk and Western exceptionally rising more than 3. The list turned abruptly upward in the afternoon, as the existing bullishness received fresh stimulus from the strength of commodities, notably wheat. Trading quickened on the advance, during which many issues gained 1 to 3 points, with those stocks very prominent which are calculated to benefit from higher commodity prices. Values finished slightly below the day's best levels, but the market closed firm.

Pronounced weakness of the dollar gave new life to talk of inflation on the Stock market. According to the Foreign Exchange, dealers' selling of the dollar abroad seemed to represent fresh bear speculation, evidently based on the agitation for inflation in Congress. The exchange market was in a confused condition, and most of the rates quoted were characterised as nominal. Some of the conservative quarters of Wall street viewed to-day's advance in stocks with scepticism. Others, however, felt that the poor first-quarter earnings were largely discounted, and expressed much encouragement at the reports of improvement in the business situation.

No change was made to-day in the Federal Reserve Bank's re-discount rate. Call money was quoted at 1 per cent. and the rate on the outside market was unchanged at ¾ per cent. Prime Paper was unaltered at 2½ to 3 per cent.

Open market discount rates were quoted at ⅝ per cent. bid and ½ per cent. asked for 90-day bank bills, and 1⅛ per cent. bid and 1 per cent. asked for six months' bills.

Sterling exchange closed $3\frac{5}{16}$ cents higher at 3.44¼.

Spot silver jumped ⅝ cent. and Futures rose about an equivalent amount in trading, aggregating 4,775,000 ounces to-day. The strength of the metal was attributed by dealers to speculative buying on the possibilities of the Washington Conference and the renewal of the agitation for inflation.

Business on the Bond market was quiet. The day's sales amounted to $11,500,000.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Thursday.

Scattered selling, together with a light but mixed commission house trade, caused recessions during early dealings on the grain market to-day. Prices thereafter rallied on covering by shorts, assisted by some evening up prior to the holiday, and a firm cash demand. General buying then took place on further talk of inflation and the sharp advance in foreign exchange, while renewed covering constituted an additional bullish factor. There was a partial set-back at the close owing to profit-taking. The firm cash position had a stimulating effect, while there was good absorption by the larger professional operators. Bullish crop news from the South-West and reports of further dust storms also had a beneficial effect. Maize early eased under selling in the September option by North-Western interests. Later in the session prices rallied owing to a lack of offerings, coupled with a broader demand from commission houses. Outside markets were reported to be over-bidding Chicago, while the late firmness of wheat constituted a bullish factor.

WHEAT opened steady, ¼c. down to ⅛c. higher. The close was firm at 1½c. to 1⅜c. advance.

LOVERS' QUARREL AND A THREAT.

SIXTY-TWO LETTERS IN TEN WEEKS.

Guard William Quinlan was the complainant in an information summons, before Mr. Hannan, at the Dublin District Court on Thursday, charging John H. Cannon, Trafalgar terrace, Monkstown, with sending a threatening letter to Anne O'Connor, of St. Brendan's terrace, Dun Laoghaire, with using threatening language towards her and with assaulting her.

The letter alleged to have been sent purported to be addressed from the East Wall, and was signed "Jack." Extracts from it were :—

"I am terribly prejudiced against you. I have lost control of myself. You have carried everything too far, and now I openly declare that I mean to be your bitterest enemy. You have done everything humanly possible to degrade me, and I hope you realise the damage. But, no! You can never give a clean thought to any mortal thing. You punished me in a merciless manner. I stuck it as long as I could, but now I am reeking with vengeance. I cannot work, because the idea holds me that you deserve killing . . . . I am coming into town again this evening, and you can see me if you like at Harrison's at 5.35. I am then going to get mad drunk, so you can have a few words with me while I am sane. I don't think I'll see you any more after this evening, unless I think of some mad thing while I am drunk."

Mr. D. O'Donovan (State Solicitor's Department) prosecuted, and Mr. Herman Good appeared for the defence.

GIRL'S DIARY.

The case was partly heard last week, and the evidence of Miss O'Connor was now continued. She was allowed to consult a diary, which she wrote up each day, in order to verify dates of meetings with defendant and other incidents connected with the case. From this she said she knew it was on 3rd March defendant, who was then somewhat intoxicated, walked with her to the Plaza, where she was engaged, because it was on 4th March she got the threatening letter. On 5th March defendant followed her as she was returning from Mass. She ignored him, and told her father about the letter, and her father told the Guards. On 6th March defendant called at the Plaza and tried to force his way into the offices, alleging falsely that she owed him money. On 7th March he followed her when she got off a 'bus, and called her insulting names.

Mr. Good asked her why, after all this, she wrote on 25th March to defendant, addressing him as "Dear Jack," and telling him that "she would show the gang there was a kick in her yet."

Miss O'Connor said she did not mean what was in the letter, but wrote it from motives of policy, as she wanted to get back other letters she had written, and which defendant was holding over her.

NO ENGAGEMENT.

Michael O'Connor, father of Miss Anne O'Connor, said he first met the defendant on 2nd February, when the latter called at his house to get his daughter to write a letter to the Port and Docks Board. Cannon dictated the contents of the letter, and when his daughter wrote it he took it away with him. There had never been any question of an engagement between his daughter and Cannon.

Mr. Good—How often did Cannon call at your house?—Two or three times.

Did he send drink up to your house?—He sent a half-dozen bottles of stout up twice.

And you kept it?—I didn't throw it out. (Laughter.)

Evidence was next given about an incident on the night of Saturday, 11th March. Miss O'Connor was being escorted home from the 'bus in Dun Laoghaire, when Cannon, who had been waiting, came up, and, pushing between the escort and the girl, said "Tell him what you've done on me." Cannon then said she was responsible for his losing a job with the Port and Docks Board.

John Cannon, the defendant, who gave his age as thirty-two, said that he lived with an aunt at 14a Trafalgar terrace, Monkstown. For years he had gone under the name of Hamilton, having been reared with a family which suggested that. He first met Miss Anne O'Connor on 29th July, 1932, and kept company with her for nine or ten months after that, spending a lot of money on taking her to the pictures, the theatre, and so on. He was genuinely in love with her and thought she returned the feeling. Some time in November she told him that a man (whom she named) had letters belonging to her and photographs, all of which she wanted back. He went to the man and got the letters. On 24th February there was another row, following on an objection made by him to a phrase used in one letter. He threatened to tell her father about it, and she said that, if he did, she would ring up the Port and Docks Board about him. On 3rd March she accused him of holding the letter over her for purposes of his own. Then he wrote the document of which complaint was now made. On 5th March he met her again and she asked him for the letter, and when he refused to give it she struck him on the nose. On 7th March he gave her the letter. He denied having ever assaulted Miss O'Connor, and had no serious intention when he wrote the threats.

TELEPHONE CALLS.

In further evidence, Cannon referred to telephone calls sent to the Port and Docks Board, and suggested that during four of the months when he was keeping company with Miss O'Connor she was keeping company with another young man.

When he was in a public-house with the girl's father he told him that he intended to marry his daughter. He had received sixty-two letters from her in ten weeks, and often got three by the same post, all of them breathing love and affection for him.

Asked by Mr. O'Donovan why he went under the names of Hamilton and Cannon, the defendant said that Miss O'Connor could have her choice of names when they were married.

The evidence having closed,

Mr. Hannan refused informations on the charge of assault. On the charge of threatening, the defendant was ordered to enter into recognisances to keep the peace and to be of good behaviour for twelve months, himself in £50 and two sureties in £25 each, or, in default, to be imprisoned for two months.

GRAZING LAND AT A DISCOUNT.

Grazing lands up to the time of the general election were being let at prices below those of 1932 by 10s. to 20s. per acre, but since the present Government came into power the demand for such land has fallen off entirely, and owners, unable to stock it themselves, are glad to take any rent that is offered. As it is, fifty per cent. of the grazing land available is unlet.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

HARD GOING LIKELY.

FANCIES FOR KEMPTON PARK AND MANCHESTER.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Friday Night.

FOR the benefit of anyone who thinks of a little speculative business this Easter, it should be mentioned that the ground, which was hard when we left Nottingham on Tuesday, is still harder now; for the amount of rain that has fallen in the interval has been negligible.

It is almost inevitable, unless there is a sudden change in the weather, that the ground will be hard to-morrow at Kempton when we watch the proceedings from the new stands, which are said to be the finest in England; for the sun has been shining all to-day, and there has been a drying north-east wind.

The Rosebery Stakes is the principal event of the day, and here I could have had a great liking for the chance of Galdennis, but for the fact that his best form last year was shown when the going was really soft. It was particularly heavy when he won running away at Newbury in October. As Pomme d'Api has been withdrawn, I believe some fresh training troubles have supervened.

Taj Ud Din is likely to be the Aga Khan's candidate, but he may do better later. Mr. Lambton's Pricket has already shown what he can do on this course, and at this distance, and he is one that may not be so much affected by firm going as some of the others. He should, I think, beat Abbot's Worthy here, well though the latter ran in the Newbury Cup.

Huron won this race twelve months ago, but he has not done a great deal since. Galapas had some useful form last year when his trainer got him to his liking, and he seems to be well in this race with only 7st. 6lb. to carry. He may be the danger to PRICKET, whom I take to win.

Savoy Folly, who ran so well at Newbury on her first appearance, might only win the Isleworth Plate in the absence of TRUE EYE. The latter shewed terrific speed when she won at Newmarket.

CODICIL found one too good for him at Lingfield last Saturday in Knight of the Vale, but he may win the Queen Elizabeth Plate.

JUMPING AT MANCHESTER.

At Manchester a good meeting under National Hunt Rules begins to-morrow, with the Lancashire Steeplechase to follow on Monday. Mr. Whitney and his trainer, Jack Anthony, have been so unlucky this season that it seems venturesome to suggest that their Thomond II., who has top weight, will win the Five Hundred Steeplechase; yet his credentials are excellent. Brienz 2lb. below him is another likely one, if his fall in the Scottish Grand National has not affected him. Kilcash Hill may wait for the Lancashire Steeplechase, as may Inverse. The latter, however, seems to have lost his form. Montclair is a promising novice, but for the likely winner I shall have to take THOMOND II., to whom the danger may be Sir Crispen.

WINDERMERE LADDIE may give the weight away, and win the Cromwell Handicap Hurdle, while in the Swinton Steeplechase I like the chance of GLENHAZEL.

GALTEE MORE.

ROSEBERY STAKES.

GUNGA DIN FANCIED TO WIN AT MANCHESTER.

THE Kempton Park Executive, having built the world's largest grand stand, will be fully prepared for the huge crowds they are likely to get to-day if the weather holds. Excellent sport is likely to be seen, with the Rosebery Stakes as the chief event.

Appropriately enough, Lord Rosebery won this race last year with Huron, who can again represent him to-day. Huron's subsequent record, however, was far from good, and though he comes from a stable in form it is difficult to recommend him. His stable companion, Short Hand, who has already had a race this season, appears to be far the better of the pair, and he is one I shall want on my side.

It appears very possible that favouritism will rest with Walter Nightingall's charge, Galdennis, the winner of the Liverpool Spring Cup, when he had such as Venturer, Bon Soldat, Short Hand and Apperley behind him. Galdennis has been kept well on the move since, but I am inclined to think that the Liverpool form flatters him a little. I should expect him to run much better if the course were softer than it is likely to be.

At Newmarket there is a lot of confidence behind Pricket, who was "tried" with the Lincolnshire winner, Dorigen. I am told that Pricket has never been fitter, and in that case he should at least gain a minor berth. He likes the course, and is as good on the top of the ground as he is in holding going. Abbots Worthy put up a sterling show in the Newbury Spring Cup, although he was unable to finish in the first three. He will be much better for that race, and will find the distance (one and a quarter miles) well within his compass.

Seraph Boy is fit, and I hear good reports concerning the five-year-old, Galapas. On his best running the latter is certainly well treated, and, in taking as the likely winner, I name Pricket and Short Hand as the best of the others.

Sneyd will saddle a fancied candidate for the Coventry Plate with either Sir Joshua Reynolds or Mr. Sandy, but I shall take my chance with who put up a fine show in Negro's race at Newbury.

Red Letter Day will, I hear, take a lot of beating for the Queen Elizabeth Plate, but I hope to see first past the post. He has wintered well, and will be as fit as any in the field.

National Hunt enthusiasts should be well entertained at Manchester, where a good race should be seen for the Five Hundred Steeplechase. Brienz, Thomond II., Magic Moon and Kilcash Hill are among those expected to show to advantage, but who is at his best has the vote.

WINDERMERE LADDIE

has a big weight to carry in the Cromwell Handicap Hurdle, but he should be successful. He is a winner on the course.

Miss Paget's horse,

INSURANCE,

should add to his laurels by winning the Jubilee Hurdle, though True Count will give him plenty to do.

NEWMARKET NOTES.

PREFERENCE FOR PRICKET FOR ROSEBERY STAKES.

NEWMARKET, Friday.

WE had a couple of showers on Wednesday afternoon, and as a consequence Mr. Marriott closed the Limekilns for ordinary exercise. B. Jarvis took his team to the Racecourse side, and gave Balm (Lowrey) and Monaster a fast seven-furlong spin. Balm, a son of Blandford and Madam Spearmint, was a backward youngster and his trainer gave him little racing, but he ran a good race when favourite for the Guernsey Produce Stakes at Birmingham in June, being beaten a short head by Flying Home colt. The latter had previously run a good race, and afterwards gave 16lb. to Nancy Stair filly and ran her to a couple of lengths, with Alicia, Sickleman and Felicitation behind him. That form speaks well for Balm, who in all probability will run at Kempton Park on Monday.

Watson gave Strathspey, Oregon Grape and Powder Boy a nice pace gallop over one mile and a quarter, and, if present arrangements are carried out, Strathspey will run for the Easter Plate at Kempton Park on Monday, and I am prepared for a good show from him.

Whitaker's Andrea carried Beary in good style in a mile spin with Witticism, and he has benefited by his race at Lingfield. I expect him to prove a good handicapper this season.

We shall muster about seventeen runners at Kempton Park to-morrow. Twelve months ago we won the Rosebery Stakes with Huron, who will again be in the field with 2lb. more to carry. J. Jarvis has got him well tuned up, but we have others engaged whose chances I prefer, Pricket being one of them. The Hon. George Lambton has never had him in better trim, and present conditions underfoot will suit him admirably, while he likes the Kempton Park track. I prefer his chance to that of Short Hand, who may be seen to better advantage later on. Taj Ud Din is another of our candidates that is expected by his connections to be a fighting factor, and Double Arch is well and not harshly treated in the matter of weight. He runs in preference to his stable companion, Buckle. Galapas is well fancied, but I shall rely upon though I expect to see Double Arch give him a close race.

PRICKET,

Miss Cupid and

are under orders to contest the Brentford Selling Plate, and the latter will want beating.

Intimate colt, Jask and

are due to run for the Half Moon Selling Plate. Secure, disqualified for third position to Luss filly and Scaltback at Liverpool, should win here.

Palladio does not run for the Coventry Plate, in which I expect a forward display from OLD IRELAND.

Robber Chief will strip considerably fitter for the Queen Elizabeth Plate than he did for the Liverpool Spring Cup, and, though he may find King Stork a hard nut to crack, is my selection.

ROBBER CHIEF

French Kiss filly will be an absentee from the Isleworth Plate, for which should be our best.

THE IRISH GRAND NATIONAL.

BIG FIELD FOR MONDAY'S RACE.

The fine weather induced a big crowd to Fairyhouse yesterday, including many riders who will be engaged in the various races there on Monday. What surprised most of them was the state of the going, which, thanks to the heavy growth of grass, was in surprisingly good order. The race for the Irish Grand National was, of course, the chief topic of conversation, and the many horses whose names are mentioned as the likely winner suggests that the race is an uncommonly open one this year. Except that Calm Crossing has been withdrawn and that Coolayna is reported as being a non-runner, there are not likely to be many changes from the list of probable starters and jockeys already published. The following will likely make up the field:—

PHŒNIX PARK TO-DAY.

INTERESTING SPORT PROMISED AT THE OPENING MEETING OF THE SEASON: THE GREER PLATE.

THE season's racing at the Phœnix Park opens this afternoon, and, judging by the number of runners declared for the various races, the sport looks like being of a highly interesting character. Two-year-old events form a feature of racing at this venue, and the Greer Plate, for which thirteen runners have been declared, will doubtless introduce us to some horses likely to play a big part in the racing of the future. The majority will be appearing on a racecourse for the first time, and of those who have already run Satiric boasts the best credentials. Mr. Parkinson's representative finished second to Moonstone at Baldoyle, beating, among others, Bangor. The latter was since beaten by Dess at Leopardstown, but the form was fairly good. P. Behan's stable, strange to relate, will be unrepresented in the race, and, though there are some "dark" horses, such as The Immortal, Veneagle and Loc-na-Croice spoken of as being smart, the best to stand on is Satiric.

Tote Double on Fourth and Fifth Races.

Of the six runners declared for the Artane Plate only Ca-Ca-Ce and Moleskin Joe have run, and probably the winner will come from the lot who have not yet appeared. Styford is reported to be smart, and may carry Sir Percy Loraine's colours to victory.

Warford ran sufficiently well in the race won by Rahilla at Baldoyle to suggest a chance of winning the Arklow Plate, in which the class is moderate. The Ashtown Plate, another race for first season horses, may fall to Menlough, who was prominent for a long way in Cybo's race at Leopardstown and finished third.

Clonford, Alshari, Clonmoy and Harvest have the best credentials of those in the Ardsallagh Plate. Harvest may be the best to stand on. Kyrat will be better suited by the distance of the Ashbourne Plate than the of the Baldoyle race, where he got beaten by Rahilla. Selections:—

Artane Plate—Styford.
Arklow Plate—Warford.
Ashtown Plate—Menlough.
Greer Plate—Satiric.
Ardsallagh Plate—Harvest.
Ashbourne Plate—Kyrat.

Groundsheet, Coolayna, Calm Crossing, Drummond, Impudent Barney, Hillsbrook, Pry and Hopeful Bill have been struck out of the Champion Steeplechase, to be run at the Powerstown Park May meeting.

Remus May Run at Manchester.

Remus, the big steeplechaser who put up such a good show for three-parts of the race for the Grand National, may contest the Great Lancashire Steeplechase at Manchester on Easter Monday. This depends, however, upon the weather, as his trainer, Frank Morgan, states that if there is no reasonable fall of rain in the next day or two the horse will not run. Remus has been giving every satisfaction in his home gallops. If he runs on Monday present arrangements are that he will be ridden by the trainer's nephew, Tommy Morgan.

T. Burns to Ride as Free-lance.

Our Curragh Correspondent is informed that it is the intention of the well-known jockey, T. Burns, to ride as a free-lance during the season.

BARBARIANS WIN THEIR FIRST MATCH.

BARBARIANS...... 24 PENARTH............ 7

The Barbarians opened their South Wales tour in fine style yesterday afternoon by defeating Penarth on the latter's ground by 24 points to 7. Special seating arrangements were made for the match, which was witnessed by 5,000 spectators.

The Barbarians were distinctly superior in all departments, and in choosing scrums in place of line-outs they secured an added advantage. They showed perfect understanding, and Mimms, on the right wing, was often prominent. Alexander crossed for the Barbarians after ten minutes, while a quarter of an hour later Hordern scored under the posts. Gosling converted both. Play was dominated by the Barbarians in the second half, and further tries were scored by Frank Williams, Mimms, Coley and Gregory. Gosling converted Williams's try. In the second half Goodman scored an opportunistic try, while Hopkins dropped a goal for Penarth.

ATHLETICS.

NORTHERN BODY AND N.A.C.A.

FIFTY ATHLETES SUSPENDED: "IRELAND" RULED OUT.

Mr. SAMUEL HUTCHINSON, hon. secretary, Northern Ireland Amateur Athletic Association, writing under date April 13th, requests the publication of the following on behalf of his Association:—

"A fully attended meeting of the Race Committee of the Northern Ireland Amateur Athletic Association was held on Wednesday evening at the headquarters, Donegall Pass, Belfast. The special business before the meeting was to consider and deal with the action of the N.A.C.A. (Free State Association) in having promoted an N.A.C.A. championship on Saturday last, 8th inst., in the North of Ireland.

"The International Board, which consists of the Amateur athletic associations of England, Scotland and Northern Ireland respectively, is affiliated to the Amateur Athletic International Federation. Consequently the Northern Ireland Athletic Association is the sole body recognised as having jurisdiction over athletics in Northern Ireland. An appeal by the N.A.C.A. against the recognition of the Northern Ireland Association as the sole governing body in that area was rejected at the meeting of the Federation in Los Angeles last year.

DECISION OF INTERNATIONAL BOARD.

"At the meeting of the International Board in London on Saturday last it was unanimously agreed that the N.A.C.A. could not take part in an international contest in the name of Ireland, since its jurisdiction was restricted solely to the Irish Free State.

"At the meeting of the Race Committee last evening it was unanimously decided to suspend all athletes who had taken part in the N.A.C.A. championship, held at Belfast on Saturday last, together with all officials who participated in the conduct of the meeting. Altogether over fifty runners were suspended, representing the following clubs:—Willowfield Temperance Harriers, Divisview, Corrigan Athletic Club, Tomregan Harriers, West Belfast Harriers, and City of Derry. The Secretary was directed to report the suspension of these runners and officials to the International Board for registration as suspends. This means that the runners cannot represent the Free State in any competition held in Northern Ireland or in any part of Great Britain, nor can they take part in ordinary athletic contests in the Free State unless at the risk of similar suspension for those who may compete against them while suspended.

AUTHORITY TO BE ASSERTED.

"The Secretary was also directed to issue the following statement upon behalf of the Northern Ireland Association to the Press for public information:—'In view of the decision of the Council of the Athletic Federation in affiliating the International Board, and the consequent action of the International Board in refusing to recognise the authority of any Association to control athletics in Northern Ireland, except the Northern Ireland Association, it has now become necessary to assert authority, and to make it clear that in future attempts upon the part of any other body to control athletics in the North of Ireland will not be permitted.

"'Due notice was given to all concerned by the Northern Ireland Association that after a given date it could no longer permit its authority to be flouted. That date expired several months ago. The action of the N.A.C.A. in promoting a championship within Northern Ireland (from which its jurisdiction has been definitely ousted both by the Federation and by the International Board) was a deliberate and provocative act. The Northern Ireland Association can no longer permit its authority to be challenged in this way.

"'The Northern Ireland Association accordingly desires all sports promoting clubs and officials, as well as athletes, to note carefully that taking part in athletic meetings held in Northern Ireland under any rules except those of the Northern Ireland Association will involve immediate disqualification, and registration of such disqualification with the International Board.

"'The Northern Ireland Association invites the attention of all connected with the sport of athletics to this warning, and hopes that it will not be necessary to resort to further suspensions to enforce its jurisdiction—a jurisdiction which cannot any longer be disputed.'"

IRISH DAVIS CUP TEAM.

McVEAGH THE ONLY NEW CHOICE.

The following team has been selected to represent Ireland v. Denmark in the first round of the Davis Cup at Copenhagen on May 7, 8 and 9:—

G. LYTTELTON ROGERS,
E. A. McGUIRE,
T. G. McVEAGH.

Non-playing Captain—Dr. A. P. Barry.

There is no surprise selection on the Irish team; for Rogers and McGuire are still unquestionably our two leading players, and on his form of last year, when he won the Co. Dublin Championship, McVeagh is the next best player in this country to McGuire. He has played against England for the last two years, and did well each time. As he has more than maintained that form in trials recently, he well deserves his place on the Davis Cup team for the first time.

TO-DAY'S HARD COURT PROGRAMME.

The first tournament of the season, the Irish hard court championships, commence to-day at Fitzwilliam, and will continue all next week. Although hard court play has not as yet appealed much to Dublin players, there is quite a good entry in the men's singles, in which are E. A. McGuire, the holder; T. G. McVeagh, and A. E. Fannin, with the majority of the best players in Dublin. None of our women have apparently started yet; for the entry in the women's singles is, as usual, most disappointing. The following is the programme for to-day:—

2 o'clock—J. A. Browne v. J. E. Willoughby (C); A. E. Fannin v. F. A. Ashe (C); W. E. H. Porter v. B. F. Coster (C); T. Gronwall v. A. Hamilton (C).

3 o'clock—E. A. McGuire v. R. Lamb (C); P. L. Flanagan v. W. G. B. Robinson (C); G. P. Regan v. C. S. Almond (C); J. H. Monahan v. "W. A. Hope" (C).

4 o'clock—S. J. Doyle v. F. H. Ballagh (C); L. Green v. M. A. Tannam (C); D. D. O'Sullivan v. J. W. Lane (C); "Don Barry" v. D. O'Herlihy (C).

5 o'clock—T. G. McVeagh v. R. J. Sandys (C); Miss M. Craig v. Miss S. Barton (C); A. P. Falkner v. N. T. Bailey; Miss R. Davis v. Miss M. Cullen.

6 o'clock—Miss T. Pym v. Miss M. Daly; Miss J. Scott v. Miss E. Kiernan; Miss P. Marsh v. Miss S. Hogan; Miss P. Dempsey v. Miss B. Maxwell.

7 o'clock—Miss S. Maxwell v. Mrs. Joyce; W. Hamilton and Miss M. Spratt v. T. G. McVeagh and Miss M. Craig; D. D. O'Sullivan and "W. A. Hope" v. M. J. McCabe and A. P. Falkner.

DATE OF IRELAND V. ENGLAND MATCH.

The annual match between Ireland and England will take place at Fitzwilliam on Monday and Tuesday, July 17th and 18th. This is the week following the Irish Championships.

BRITISH DEFEATS IN DENMARK.

COPENHAGEN, Friday.

Following on the defeats yesterday of E. C. Metcalfe and Aoki, the Japanese player in the first round of the Danish Championships, English players suffered further defeats to-day. A. M. Vinall was beaten in the Singles by P. Henrikson, of Denmark, by 6-4, 6-4, while Vinall, in partnership with Metcalfe, was beaten in the Doubles by Rasmussen and Ploughman, of Denmark, by 7-5, 3-6, 6-3.

FAIRVIEW C.Y.M.S.

An entry of twenty-five for the West of Ireland Championship, the principal event of the County Sligo Club's Open Week at Rosses Point, is up to the average. L. O. MUNN'S CUP DEFEAT.

Lionel Munn, the many times Irish champion, was among the defeated in the Royal Cinque Ports Club's competition at Deal yesterday for the Lord Brassey challenge cup.

He had received a bye through the first round, and in the second had to concede eleven strokes to R. H. Saunders. Munn was 4 up with 9 played, and Saunders squared at the eighteenth with one of his allowance strokes. He received another at the nineteenth, and that enabled him to pass into the third round. Munn was backmarker at plus 2.

THE JUNIOR CUP.

On account of the revision of the standard scratch score and handicapping scheme, the Standing Committee of the Golfing Union of Ireland have resolved that for 1933 Rule 10 of the Junior Cup Rules shall be adjusted as follow:—

"That in the Junior Cup competition in 1933, if a player's handicap has been 3 or less on 31st December, 1932, he shall not be ineligible to take part in the competition by reason of the fact that his handicap has been increased to 4 or more since that date under the revised standard scratch score and handicapping scheme."

BOXING.

SURPRISE AT THE ALBERT HALL.

"KNOCK-OUT" GIVEN AGAINST GAINS.

The most amazing knock-out of the last fifty years of boxing took place at the Albert Hall, London, on Thursday night, when Donald McCorkindale, the heavy-weight champion of South Africa, beat Larry Gains, the coloured champion of the British Empire, in the last round of a ten rounds contest. The Prince of Wales had a ringside seat to see the third meeting between these two men.

Gains had beaten McCorkindale on points, and had drawn with the South African at a second meeting, and it was expected the third would provide a thrilling contest. It did. Both men fought desperately for the knock-out throughout the contest, but so good were the defences on both sides that little punishment was taken by either man.

THE INCIDENT.

With barely a minute to go, McCorkindale pushed his man off, and as Gains staggered back the South African whipped in a left that just caught Gains on the jaw. Gains fell flat on his back. He turned over and struggled on to one knee and rested a hand on the ropes. As soon as "nine" had been uttered Gains made as if to get up. The referee, however, waved McCorkindale to his corner, saying "out."

Immediately pandemonium broke loose. Everybody in the hall was glad to see McCorkindale win, but there were many who thought that a mistake had been made, and that Gains was on his feet before the time-keeper had counted up to ten.

The time-keeper afterwards said:—"The referee picked me up at the count of seven, and I did not reach ten when Mr. Douglas called "out."

The rules of the British Boxing Board of Control state definitely that the referee must call simultaneously with the time-keeper up to "ten," and then it is within the discretion of the referee as to whether the man who is down is "out" or not. There is no doubt that the decision will provoke a considerable amount of discussion.

GAINS SURPRISED.

Interviewed after the contest Gains said: "I am astounded. I was taken off my balance by a swinging blow, and when I went down on one knee I intended to get up at eight or nine. When the time-keeper called nine I jumped to my feet, but, to my amazement, the referee said "out," and that was the end. I thought the rules were that the time-keeper should count nine, ten."

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

THE HOLIDAY MATCHES.

SHIELD TIES AND VISIT OF FAMOUS FRENCH CLUB.

There are three days of holiday matches this week-end in the Free State, but actually only six matches will be played—one to-day, three to-morrow and one on Monday. As neither Bohemians nor Cork Bohs have any interest in the Shield, to-day's game at Dalymount may be only a moderate attraction, for both clubs are near the bottom of the table. As Cork Bohs find it hard to travel at full strength, Bohemians, who were able to take a point from Shelbourne last week, should win.

To-morrow the chief feature will be the meeting of Shamrock Rovers and Drumcondra—a match that may go far to decide the Shield championship. At the moment Rovers are leading by two points, with Drumcondra close on their heels, and if the Cup-holders can win, they will not only improve their position considerably, but also dispose of the claims of one of their chief challengers. For that reason it should be a hard-fought and interesting match. Drumcondra have struck a good patch lately, but Rovers are the more consistent side, and, on their own ground, I fancy them to get the points.

Shelbourne, who are also challengers for the Shield, will have a stiff enough task at Cork, and must win to keep in the running. Cork can play fine football at the Mardyke, and for that reason may win, and thus destroy Shelbourne's hopes. Dolphin, at Harold's Cross, seem likely to beat Bray Unknowns.

If followers of the game at Dundalk are really interested in the fortunes of their club, they should turn out in force to see them play Stade Francais, the famous French amateur team. For years Stade Francais have been the outstanding club in Paris, and one of the best in France, and they are sure to play football of the highest class. They should find worthy opponents in Dundalk. On Monday the French team will meet Bohemians at Dalymount, and this, the only match of the day, should prove a huge attraction, for not only will we see good football, but also a very keenly-fought game.

BRAY CLUB'S BENEFIT MATCH.

HOME XI. (F.S.L.)	2
CROSS-CHANNEL XI. (F.S.L.)	1

At Tolka Park, yesterday, Ebbs, and Hogan (penalty) scored for the Home team; McNally for the cross-Channel players.

Last moment changes on both teams had to be filled by playing substitutes in unusual positions, but this did not affect the match seriously, and the play was always fairly interesting. There was little between the teams, and, though the cross-Channel players were the cleverer, they were put off their game by a side whose chief asset was earnestness.

The home forwards played an incisive game, and their keenness created many difficult situations for Frame, who kept goal well. Hannon and Hogan made a fine left wing, and Comerford's cleverness was always in evidence. McCarney was smart in developing play, but invariably finished poorly. Ebbs did not often get passes to suit him and was generally crowded out. Kendrick was a sound half-back for the Home side, while Neary and Kavanagh got through their work capably.

Byrne was a splendid back, his kicking and tackling being a notable feature, and Williams was surprisingly effective. McCarthy made several brilliant clearances.

The great fault with the cross-Channel team was their holding on too long, while their close passing proved ineffective. If they had been more direct, and had made more use of their outside men they might have reversed the result. Their backs were faulty, and Holmes was the best half-back. Smith was the one dangerous forward, and most of the trouble to McCarthy came from him. Somers and Buchanon were skilful, but lacked finishing power.

Home XI.—McCarthy (Shamrock Rovers); Williams (Bray Unknowns), Byrne (Shelbourne); Neary (Bray Unknowns), Kavanagh (Drumcondra), Kendrick (Dolphin); McCarney (Dolphin), Comerford and Ebbs (St. James's Gate), Hogan and Hannon (Bray Unknowns).

Cross-Channel XI.—Frame; and Dorward (Bray Unknowns), Wilson (Shelbourne); Watt (Dolphin), Matthews (Shamrock Rovers), Holmes (Shelbourne); Moone (Drumcondra), Somers (Dolphin), McNally (Bray Unknowns), Buchanon and Smith (Shamrock Rovers).

GAELIC GAMES.

ANNUAL CONGRESS TO-MORROW.

SOME OF THE TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION.

(By PAT'O.)

A RECORD number of delegates will sit to-morrow at 10.30 in the City Hall. The annual Congress of the G.A.A. has grown steadily in importance, and the committee chambers at Croke Park are not spacious enough to accommodate more than sixty delegates in comfort, whereas to-morrow's Congress will have double that number.

Mr. Sean McCarthy is unopposed for the Presidency. He has been an able administrator, has shown no favour to province or county, and native games have flourished under his leadership.

Mr. P. J. O'Keeffe as Secretary has been the happiest selection in the history of the Association. His programmes have been run through without a hitch, and he has improved the Stadium at Croke Park out of all knowledge. He has been a rigid disciplinarian and thrown a lot of energy into the college, primary schools, minor and language movements. The present prosperous position of the G.A.A. is largely of his making, and his annual report covers every phase of G.A.A. activities in a succinct and capable manner.

To-morrow's Congress will be smooth and businesslike, though the lengthy motions will bring much discussion of a healthy, constructive kind. Dublin again tilts at the non-resident rule, but delegates from the provinces will fight hard for its retention, believing that in it lies their only hope of championship honours.

THE RULES.

This is the year for rules revision, but I do not think any revolutionary change will be made. "Leave well alone" is the temper of the players, and hurlers will not brook further restrictions on their scoring area. A second crossbar would put all those spectacular drives out of court, and the game, in my opinion, would suffer, for freedom of movement is one of hurling's major attractions. It was in 1908 that the present scoring system was evolved and side points abolished. The change had immediate results, and Congress will be slow to scrap a system which has served so well.

The voluntary insurance scheme has not been a complete success, mainly through meagre details supplied and frequent illegitimate claims. Mr. O'Keeffe has hit the nail on the head here, and does not spare the erring clubs.

The comparative failure of the National Football League may call for a special committee of inquiry, and we shall hear crisp comments on the policy of those schools who discourage native games. Ulster and Britain need attention, for there are weak links here; but Mr. S. Quane, the American delegate, will have a glowing report to give of the position of hurling, football and handball in U.S.A. Altogether the 1933 Congress promises to be a hearty one, constructive assembly.

WEEK-END GAMES.

Inter-county games are few over the week-end, but Drogheda will have a big company to see Dublin and Louth selections in the Corrigan Tournament. Louth played well last week against Armagh, but Dublin football has reached a high standard.

Best of the Metropolitan games is the clash of Young Irelands and Garda hurlers at Parnell Park. Garda have not shone in the League, but they are best in championship competition, and to-morrow's game with the holders is a definite "try-out" for the more important engagement with Civil Service on April 23rd.

Garda footballers have an attractive holiday trip to Tuam to meet a Galway selection, and the junior trial game will bring a good crowd to Malahide.

The old rivals, Blackrock and St. Finbarr's, meet in a challenge benefit game at the Cork Mardyke, and high-class hurling is assured under present weather conditions.

BILLIARDS.

AN EASY VICTORY FOR IRISH CHAMPION.

J. AYRES (holder) ... 500 P. Fox 187

On Thursday night at the Catholic Commercial Club, Dublin, J. Ayres, of Nenagh, dual holder of the billiards and snooker championships for the past two years, had an easy victory by 313 points over P. Fox, who was beaten in the semi-final last year by J. Byrne, and won the Tailteann snooker championship in 1928. Fox took an early lead, but a fine 71, mostly losing hazards, by Ayres, brought him to 105 in twenty minutes, to lead by 63. Good all round runs of 51, 37 and 54 enabled Ayres to reach 400 in sixty-five minutes, to be in a lead of 279. Fox contributed a neat 30, but with 35 and 6 (unfinished) Ayres ran to his points in an hour and twenty-five minutes. Best breaks were:—Ayres, 71, 54, 51, 37, 35 and 32; Fox, 30, 16 (twice), 14, 13 and 11 (twice).

BREAK OF 78 BY FENNING.

S. FENNING ...... 500 F. CULLEN 309

S. Fenning met F. Cullen, who had a bye in the first round, last night, and had an easy win by 191 points. Cullen took an early lead, and reached 100 in twenty minutes, 51 ahead, but Fenning, with good runs of 37, 33 and 44, reached 200 in three-quarters of an hour, 80 in front. A fine break of 78, the highest in the tournament so far, mostly losing hazards, brought him to 400 in eighty minutes, and with 38, 22 and 23 (unfinished) he ran to his points in an hour and fifty minutes.

To-night, at 8.—Billiards—J. Kelly v. E. Byrne.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT

DUBLIN FIRM.

ALLIANCE GAS RISING.

The feature of the Dublin Stock market on Thursday (when the House closed for the Easter holiday) was the strength of Free State Funds. First Loan rose a point to 107 and Third Loan ¾ to 110¾, while Second Loan remained firm at 114¼. Land Bonds were firm at last price. War Loan further advanced to 101 15/16. Land Stock (1903) was slightly easier, but Local Loans advanced to 89⅛.

Corporation issues were unchanged.

Banks were fairly busy, and where prices changed they moved to higher levels. Munster and Leinsters, Nationals and Royals were all dearer.

Except a rise of ⅜ in Great Southern Preference, Rails showed no change.

Guinness units were busy and finally unchanged at 80s. 4½d. Alliance Gas rose ⅛ to 12⅝.

Among Industrials there were less than half a dozen markings. Coats and Chemicals were easier. A broken lot of Imperial Tobacco sold at 90s., a shilling under last price. Vickers remained at 6s. 4d.

There were several bargains in "Kaffirs," and prices reflected the active market for the leaders in London.

LONDON HARDER.

BRITISH RAILS STRONG.

It was only to be expected that business would show a further contraction on the eve of the holiday, yet, despite falling off of interest, a firm tone prevailed in practically every section, while here and there outstanding features of strength were evident. British Rails again provided one of the brightest of markets, and further substantial appreciations were scored all round, quotations finishing firm at the highest levels of the day. British Funds also enjoyed a renewed demand, with a consequent advance in values; while among Mines, the gold shares shot forward in no uncertain manner, new high records being established in several instances, a feature being a sharp advance in Crown Mines, while Sub Nigels and Transvaal Gold Estates were other strong points. Business generally in the Industrial sections was confined to rather narrow limits, but individual features of activity and strength were observable. Breweries were supported, on growing hopes that there will be a reduction in the beer duty, while Motors also commanded a fair share of attention. Tobaccos also displayed a firm appearance, and several of the miscellaneous industrials returned enhanced levels. Textiles, however, were uncertain, and the International counters rather easier.

British Funds attracted quite a considerable volume of attention, and the firm tone apparent on Wednesday continued to prevail, the closing quotations again showing appreciable advances. Consols 2½ per Cent. and 4 per Cent. were each ⅛ to the good, while War Loan 3½ per Cent. closed at 102 1/16, an advance of ⅛. Victory Bonds, Local Loans and the 5 per cent. Conversion Loan each added ⅛ to their previous closing rates, while the 3 per cent. Conversion Loan gained 1/16, with the 3½ per cent. and 4½ per cent. each ¼ harder. Indias were an exceptionally firm spot, and the 3 per cent. and 3½ per cent. each put on 1¼ points to 75¾ and 87¾, respectively. Foreign Government stocks experienced another quiet session, yet values were mostly well maintained, the few changes registered at the close being narrow and irregular in character. The strong tone ruling in British Rails on Wednesday was again displayed on Thursday, and with a brisk demand in evidence, quotations shot forward smartly all round. Southern Pref.-Ord. led with an advance of 1¾ points to 36, while the Def.-Ord. were finally ⅞ firmer at 12⅞. Great Western Ord. put on ½ and the 5 per cent. Pref. closed 1½ points to the good, while Midlands and North-Easterns all returned materially improved levels, most of the preferences finishing at an advance of a point. Underground were quiet and content to repeat their previous closing values. Extremely quiet conditions characterised Colonial and Foreign Rails, and, for the most part, no alteration was shown on the day. "Can. Pacs.," however, were not so good, the final level showing a loss of ⅛ at 12¾. American Rails were depressed, losses of up to 2 points being general. In other departments Oils, while quieter, managed to preserve a steady to firm appearance. Rubber shares presented a firm appearance reflecting the upward movements of the commodity, but in the absence of interest quotations were little changed. Tea shares were a good market.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

BREWERIES CONTINUE IN EVIDENCE.

While there was little in the nature of fresh business passing on the eve of the holiday, the Industrial Market finished with a cheerful appearance.

The trans-Atlantic counters moved within narrow limits owing to the uncertain trend of Wall street and showed little change on balance. Nickels finished at 13 9/16 after 13 7/16, Hydros at 5⅝ after 5¼, Steels 46¼ after 45⅞ and Drugs at 50. "Emmies" ruled quietly steady and closed without alteration at 8s. 6d. The Cables and Wireless stocks opened harder only to slip back again during the afternoon. The Pref. closed at 83 after 83¼, the "A" Ord. at 28 after 28¼, and the "B" Ord. at 10⅜ after 10½.

Despite a small volume of transactions Electric Supply shares were firm, price movements being nearly all in the upward direction.

Apart from Fords, which further declined 6d. to 18s., pending the publication of the annual results, Motor shares came in for renewed attention. Austins closed 6d. higher at 52s. 6d., and Standards rose 9d. to a similar level. Although there was not a great deal doing among Iron, Coal and Steel descriptions, prices generally had a harder appearance on encouraging trade advices. Amalgamated Anthracite Preference were quoted at 21s. 6d. ex the Funding Certificates, which were dealt in up to 95½.

Budget hopes continued to exert favourable influence on Breweries. Bass Ratcliff made the best showing with an advance of 1s. to 64s. 3d., while modest gains were recorded by Allsopps, Barclay Perkins, Courage, Distillers, Guinness, Ind Coope, Mitchell and Butlers, South African Ord. and Watney Defd.

Tobaccos presented a firm front under the lead of Carreras "A," which, after crossing the 7 mark, finished 1/16 higher on balance at that figure. "Imps" hardened to 90s. 9d., with the "B" Pref. inquired for at 29s. 3d. "Bats" remained around 94s. 9d. throughout.

News shares continued on the up-grade. Amalgamated Press Ord. improved to 14s. 6d., Daily Mail Trust to 29s., Mirrors to 10s., and Pictorials to 28s. 6d.

In the Provision and Catering group the Unilever issues again finished a few pence easier at 24s. 1½d., and a similar recession occurred in Lovell and Christmas at 17s. 9d. Slight improvements were marked in Home and Colonial at 14s. 4½d., J. Lyons at 5 11/16 and Tate and Lyles at 69s. 1½d. Among Stores descriptions, John Barker Ords. remained uncertain, and were finally 6d. lower at 65s. 6d. There was a fair turnover in Gamage Ords., which left them 6d. higher at 10s. 9d.

Textiles made a mixed showing. Patons and Baldwins and Calico Printers received a few supporting orders, but the rest had a dull appearance. Coats weakened to the extent of 7½d. to 48s. 3d., with Sewing Cottons offered at 40s. 6d., Linen Thread at 24s., and Whitworth and Mitchell at 44s. 6d. Among Rayons, American Celanese receded 1/16 to 2 1/16, while Courtaulds lost the turn at 27s. 3d.

Among Overseas Banks, Hongkong and Shanghais rose a point to 121, and Bank of Australasia strengthened to 8½, although Bank of New South Wales yielded ½ to 23¼. Of the Insurance issues, Guardian eased ¼ to 12¼, and a similar set-back was registered in North British at 34⅜. Furness Withys sagged a few pence to 17s. 7½d. P. and O. Defd., however, strengthened to 15s. 1½d.

After fair activity, Triplex Glass retained their overnight level of 46s., and Amal. Metals were finally 1s. to the good at 12s. 6d. on the dividend announcement, with Reckitts firm at 95s. on the favourable earnings position disclosed in the accounts.

British Match ruled firm at 33s. 6d., assisted by the Brymay statement. Dunlops gained the turn at 21s. 7½d., but Chemicals drooped to 25s. 1½d., Swedish Match "B" to 13s. 9d., and Molasses to 4s. 6d. Eastwoods continued in active demand, rising 1s. further to 25s.

In the recent issues group Allied News Debs. at 2¼ prem. and "Daily Mirror" Debs. at 1⅜ prem. were both dull spots.

OIL SHARES IRREGULAR.

Business in Oil shares on Thursday last was again of a specialised rather than of a general character, for, while there was little doing in international counters, certain of the more speculative favourites met with active attention. Advices received overnight from New York in regard to the course of the leading American Oil stocks cannot be said to have influenced the market here, price movements being of a slight and irregular character. While there was no pressure to sell by Continental operators, there was hardly any demand from either Paris or Amsterdam. An outstanding feature was once more provided by British Controlled Preferences, which continued in active request at steadily advancing prices, while Phœnix rose sharply, at the end finishing 1s. better. Otherwise little of interest transpired.

RUBBER SHARES STEADY.

Although, in common with other sections of the House, business was on a restricted scale, the firmer conditions ruling recently were again evident in the Rubber Share Market, and, although actual share price movements were of little consequence, they were all in the right direction. The fact that the share section preserved a satisfactory tendency was wholly due to the strength apparent in the raw material department, where another good business was put through at improving values. Spot and April sold from 2 7/16d. to 2 11/16d. per pound, with May and June up to 2⅝d. per pound, July to September up to 2 11/16d. per pound, and October to December closing at 2 13/16d., after 2 11/16d. per pound. Quotations for other positions also showed material improvement.

"LONDON "STREET" MARKET.

The "street" market had a holiday appearance after hours on Thursday, and, apart from Phœnix Oil, which rose sharply on unconfirmed rumours of a pending strengthening of the Board, there was little material change in quotations. Phœnix were eventually 6d. higher at 10s. 9d., but other Oil issues were unchanged. Kaffirs were very steady, but business was meagre. Nickels were fractionally harder in Shorter's Court at 13 9/16, as were Tractions at 10⅛ and Hydros at 5⅝, but Steels shed ⅛ to 46¼. "Canadas" gave way ⅛ to 12⅝.

THE MONEY MARKET

LOWER RATE FOR TREASURY BILLS.

Credit was in plentiful supply on Thursday, and loans until Saturday were offering at ½ down to ¼ per cent.

Discounts showed an easier tendency on the Treasury Bill results. Fine three months commercial bills were quoted at 7/16 per cent., and the "hot" Treasuries were offering at 5/16 per cent. The banks were buyers of short-dated bills at ¼ per cent.

Tenders were received at the Bank of England for £50,000,000 in Treasury Bills, and 2½ per cent. Conversion Loan. Tenders for the Bills at £99 17s. 8d. get about 79 per cent., above in full. Tenders for the Loan at £94 3s. 6d. and above receive in full. The average rate indicated for the Bills is about 15/32 per cent., as compared with 15/32 per cent. for last week's Bills.

The Bank of England announced the purchase of £984,802 in bar gold.

Silver rose ⅜d. on American buying to 18d. per ounce for spot, and 18 1/16d. for forward delivery. Gold was quoted 2d. lower at 121s. 6d. per ounce fine. About £75,000 was in the market and was taken for the continent. The Bullion market will be closed until Tuesday.

The feature in the Foreign Exchange market was the sharp rally in sterling in the later hours. The dollar rate jumped to 3.42, and a corresponding improvement in the £ occurred in all the leading Continental centres. In the Far-Eastern market, Hongkong dollars weakened to 1s. 3¾d., while yen were firmer at 1s. 3d.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

DEATH OF MR. F. G. KELLAWAY.

Mr. F. G. Kellaway, a former British Postmaster-General, died on Thursday at his Kent home after a long illness. He was 62. Mr. Kellaway was vice-chairman and managing director of Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Company, Ltd., and chairman and managing director of the Marconi International Marine Communication Company, Ltd. He was also deputy governor and joint managing director of Cables and Wireless, Ltd., and joint managing director of Imperial and International Communications, Ltd. He was appointed Postmaster-General after the general election in 1921, and it was during his period of office that the negotiations which led to the formation of the old British Broadcasting Company took place.

LAKE VIEW AND STAR.

The Financial News understands that Lake View and Star has made an offer for the assets of the Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines on the basis of one Lake View share for every three shares of Great Boulder. The cash assets of the Great Boulder would, however, be excluded from the proposed deal. It is believed that a meeting of the shareholders of Great Boulder will be convened shortly to consider the offer.

FISHER'S FOILS CAPITAL.

It is proposed to reduce the capital of Fisher's Foils, Ltd., from £200,000 in 4,000,000 1s. shares to £100,000 in 4,000,000 6d. shares. Every ten 6d. shares will then be consolidated into one share, and the capital will be increased again to £200,000 in 800,000 5s. shares, of which the present shareholders will together hold 400,000. The company is working at a satisfactory profit, but the directors consider that certain balance sheet items should be written off or written down before they would feel justified in considering the question of a dividend.

SOUTH AFRICAN MINERS' WAGES.

Following the second meeting between the Chamber of Mines and the Workers' Union, the Chamber has written a letter to the Union stating that it is unable to grant the request for higher wages.

INTERNATIONAL LATEX.

The Societa Italiana Pirelli of Milan has become a participant in International Latex Processes, the company formed at the end of last year for the purpose of consolidating (outside the United States of America) the whole of the wide range of patents and technical knowledge held by the Anode Rubber Company and the United States Rubber Company within the field relating to the direct use of rubber latex for manufacturing purposes. Sir Eric Geddes, chairman of the Anode Rubber Company and of the Dunlop Rubber Company, is to be chairman of International Latex Processes.

A. MILLAR AND CO., LTD.

At an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of A. Millar and Co., Ltd., held on the 13th inst., at the registered office of the company, Thomas street, Dublin, Mr. H. J. Millar, joint managing director presiding, the following resolutions was passed unanimously:—"That the capital of the company be reduced from £225,000, divided into 75,000 Cumulative Preference shares of £1 each, and 150,000 Ordinary shares of £1 each, to £175,000 divided into 75,000 Preference shares of £1 each, and 150,000 Ordinary shares of 13s. 4d. each, and that such reduction be effected by returning to the holders of the 150,000 Ordinary shares that have been issued, paid-up capital to the extent of 6s. 8d. per share, and by reducing the nominal amount of each of the said Ordinary shares from £1 to 13s. 4d.

LONDON MINING MARKET.

"KAFFIRS" ACTIVE.

In the Mining market on Thursday active conditions ruled in the Kaffir section throughout, and further substantial advances were marked in a number of issues, particularly among the big dividend-payers. For the most part Johannesburg was content to leave the initiative to London, although it did take the lead in buying a few issues, its particular favourites being Transvaal Gold and East Rand Proprietaries. The demand was more widely spread than recently, but the favourites were still Crowns, Modders and Government areas, it being estimated that many thousands of these three changed hands. Paris also helped to swell the demand, Crowns being especially in request from that quarter. Brokers frequently had difficulty in filling the orders which came their way owing to the shortage of shares in the market. At the end another long list of substantial improvements was scored.

The repercussions of the Globe and Phœnix-Rhodesian Corporation judgment saved dealers in the Rhodesian department from having an idle day. Quite early Johannesburg came in a buyer of Globes, although the orders probably originated in Rhodesia and the shares touched 1 9/16 bid, but closed unchanged at 1½. Support was forthcoming for Rhodesian Corporations at the reduced level reached on Wednesday, and the shares finished 1½d. harder at 3s. 6d., after being bid or at that price. Apart from the activity in these two issues there was little business in progress. Tintos sagged ¼ to 15 in anticipation of the report, which is generally expected to make a poor showing. Support from Paris was also reflected in the fractionally better prices for the De Beers issues. Tin recovered more than the preceding day's loss at £156 12s. 6d. per ton, but the share market again showed no decided tendency. The tone in West Africans was firmer, but little improvement occurred in the volume of business. Elsewhere Mining Corporation of Canada receded 3d. to 7s., as did Mining Trust to 4s. Waihi, however, advanced 3d. to 19s., and the recent rise in Wiluna brought in further support for Associated Mining and Finance, which finished 9d. up at 4s. 3d.

THE "CATTELAND."

CROSS-BREEDING PRODUCES NEW SPECIES OF ANIMAL.

Two animals of a new species, hybrid between an eland bull and Friesland cows, are on show at the Pretoria "Zoo" this month, says Reuter. They are called "Cattelands."

It is hoped that they will possess something of the immunity of the eland (a heavily-built type of antelope) to certain cattle diseases.

This experiment in breeding has been carried out on a farm in Griqualand West owned by Captain R. E. Helme, of Westminster, Orange Free State, who is now in Johannesburg.

The colour of the hybrid is red—a fact of great scientific interest; for black is the colour always perpetuated in cattle crosses.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

MOTOR CAR TAKEN FOR "JOY-RIDE."

MAGISTRATE'S SEVERE COMMENT.

(BEFORE MR. E. J. LITTLE.)

James Kane, a well-dressed young man, with an address in Cabra road, was charged with stealing a motor car, the property of Mr. Harold Murdock, of Dun Laoghaire, on Wednesday, from outside a garage in South King street. He was also charged with being in illegal possession of the car, in which there was a rug value £2, and wasting three gallons of petrol.

Guard Farrell (46 D) told the Court that, having received a report that a car had been stolen, he was on the alert in Blackhorse road, when he saw a car approaching. Instead of obeying the signal to stop, the driver accelerated to such speed that he (witness) had to jump out of the way to avoid being run down. Witness got another car and followed the runaway. He found the car abandoned on the roadside near the McKee Barracks. He afterwards arrested Kane in Old Cabra road.

Mr. Sean Ryan, solicitor for the defendant, said that he admitted taking the car for a "joy-ride." The defendant knew nothing about the rug.

Mr. Little—It might have been taken when the car was abandoned.

Mr. Ryan said that the defendant was a member of a very respectable family, who lost his employment in a Dublin drapery warehouse recently. He was at a loose end, and took the car to go to Clones. He was returning with the intention of leaving it where he got it. He knew that there was a search on foot, and when he saw the Guard on the road he decided to get rid of the car as soon as he could.

Mr. Little said that the taking of cars for so-called "joy-rides" imposed a heavy strain on the Guards. On the charge of larceny he refused informations, but the charge of illegal possession had been proved, and the lowest sentence he could impose for that was a month's imprisonment.

Mr. Ryan suggested the substitution of a fine, but Mr. Little said that the father of the boy would have to pay that, and an innocent person would be punished.

Mr. Murdock said that he had been absent from the car only about seven minutes. No injury was done to the car, and he did not desire to see the boy punished. He appealed to the Justice not to inflict imprisonment.

Mr. Little yielded to this appeal, and ordered the defendant to enter into a recognisance of £50 to be of good behaviour for the next three years.

The defendant was then discharged.

CHARGE OF LARCENY.

Mary Rogers, Pearsetown, Garristown, Co. Meath, was charged by Detective Officers Mulcahy and Scallan with the larceny of a pair of brown shoes, the property of Frances Brown, a maid in the employment of the Richmond Hospital.

Detective Officer Mulcahy told the Court that he took the accused woman into custody at Duleek, Co. Meath, where, he said, she admitted having taken the shoes, which she had in her possession. On searching the house he found a silver wristlet watch, which, he said, would be the subject of another charge.

The defendant was remanded until Tuesday.

'BUS OWNERS FINED.

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Guard Jeremiah Doran (182 D) summoned a number of 'bus-owners and drivers for failing to have effective brakes on their vehicles. The Excelsior 'Bus Company were fined £3 and the driver £4 in one case; the St. Christopher 'Bus Company were fined £1 and the driver £1 in a second case; the Savoy Omnibus Company were fined £2, the driver being given the benefit of the Probation Act.

QUESTION TO PORT AUTHORITY.

EMPLOYMENT IN DUBLIN DOCKS.

At the weekly meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board on Thursday, Mr. James Larkin, senior, asked what was the average amount of employment given on the Dublin quays this year compared with last year.

The Secretary was instructed to write to the shipping companies asking for the information desired by Mr. Larkin. The Chairman said that the Board had no right to demand it.

Mr. Larkin said that the reason he raised the question was that both the last Government and the present Government promised the "decasualisation" of labour at the port. There had been a considerable influx of labour from the country to the port. He said that he would try and get the information through the Department of Industry and Commerce.

The Lord Mayor said that at a recent meeting he had raised the case of sixteen men who had given long service to the Board and had been paid off. It appeared, from the Engineer's report, that nothing could be done for these men.

The Chairman said that the Board could not give employment where it had not got it. They were employing all the men they could, and the Lord Mayor knew that perfectly well.

The Lord Mayor said that these men had been thrown on the scrap heap after long and faithful service.

Mr. O'Kelly, vice-chairman, objected to the costly experiment the Board were making in accepting a large cargo of Dutch coal, about the quality of which they knew nothing.

The Chairman said that Mr. O'Kelly knew what would happen if the coal was not up to specification.

Major Hollwey said that the Board should use Welsh coal, which had proved satisfactory. The Welsh bought more from this country than anybody else.

It was decided to accept the Welsh coal, the Lord Mayor and Mr. O'Kelly dissenting.

JAS. BYRNE, Esq., Wallstown Castle—"It is a most invaluable remedy for Scour in Calves, a disease which has hitherto baffled veterinary skill."

H. E. TURNER, Esq., Payne's End, Tring—"I find it quite the best remedy, and have used it successfully in cases where all other remedies have failed. I consider it a boon to anyone rearing calves."

E. W. HALL, Esq., Kill-o'-Grange, Blackrock—"The Calf, a pure-bred Jersey, which I am keeping for breeding, was so far gone that it was lying unable to rise, and grinding its teeth for death, as I thought. I gave it four large teaspoonfuls the first time, and next day it was up on its feet, and is now past danger. Your medicine should be better known."

CATTLE.

DUBLIN, Thursday, 13th April.

	Numbers on sale this week as compared with last		Corresponding weeks of 1931.	1932.
Beasts	1,656	Decrease 325	2,710	2,162
Sheep and lambs	6,639	Increase 410	5,342	5,310
Veal calves ...	1	Decrease 4	3	4

A further shrinkage in cattle supplies here this week brought numbers much under a seasonable gathering. A few of our leading victuallers were early on the track for fancy quality, small-weighted beasts, and paid late rates freely for heifers of this class, which, however, formed a very minor percentage of market. From the beginning heavier and plainer cattle proved hard to cash at more or less accentuated concessions, even on last Thursday's reduced and uncertain currencies. Home requirements were practically confined to some moderate Dublin purchases, there being a smaller attendance of both North of Ireland and cross-Channel buyers. Those present were in very bad form, and business in these directions, from opening to close, was of an unusually idle routine—in fact, almost at a standstill—with the result that the bulk bullocks on market were, in many cases, not even nice, for some very useful lots were wanted around 23s. per cwt., but owners declined to sell at this ruinous price. The new tariff rates imposed on Irish cattle almost brought the shipping trade to a standstill here this week, and, notwithstanding the lower prices ruling and half usual supplies, large numbers were turned out unsold. Beef cows also neglected. Some of our local fleshers took the pick of things around last day's top prices, after which it was a case of finding buyers at any reasonable offer. Still, more than half the supply failed to clear, as did bulls, which were not even asked about. Prime, handy-weight heifers, 31s. to 33s., occasionally 34s. per cwt.; handy-weight bullocks, 27s. to 29s., heavier 23s. to 26s.; others unsaleable, and beef cows 13s. to 20s.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

Lambs formed the bulk of the increased supplies here this week. Much the same number of both home and cross-Channel buyers attended. For prime wether sheep there was a readier sale, but no more money obtainable. Coarse classes of mutton too plentiful and difficult to satisfactorily handle. Practically no buyers for most ewes after lamb and rams, which were numerous. Fat lambs came forward in disappointing supply, and were quickly snapped up at firm to occasionally dearer rates for local requirements. Export buyers were very cautious, and little business passed in this direction except at lower prices. Market, on the whole, proved steady for meated lots of handy weights, but over-heavy and coarse classes failed to clear. Prime mutton, 7d. to 7½d. per lb.; others, 5½d. to 6½d.; wethers, 32s. to 55s. each; hoggets, 22s. to 40s.; ewes, 30s. to 46s., and lambs, 13s. to 35s., with exceptional lots a few shillings more.

DAIRY CATTLE.

Arrivals to this market were small, there being on offer 143 head, which gave few outstanding beasts to draw upon. Trade, on the whole, disappointing; very meagre attendance of buyers in shipping interests, who bid cautiously following the change in the tariff rates, bids in most cases being 10s. to 15s. per head lower than last week. Heifers of class got fairly well placed around previous values. Local dairymen now mostly have turned cows out on grass, and have apparently more than ample milk supply; therefore, wanting few extra stockers. Many useful cows were yet to be sold at a late hour, but at the lower prices ruling a clearance seemed possible. Best cows, £14 to £16 per head; heifers, £11 to £15; seconds, £9 to £10; others, £7 to £8.

PIGS.

Smaller market of swine here this week—viz., 754 head, a decrease of 233 on previous gathering. Market opened with a steady to dearer trade for bacon hogs from 10 to 14st., but light quality swine proved a slow sale owing to the low prices of lambs. Few buyers in shipping interests, and those present gave poor support. Sows not so plentiful, and found ready buyers at firm to dearer rates. Slips and bonhams were poorly bid for, with many of the poorer class turned out unsold. Prices over the day's proceedings worked out as follows:—Prime light-weight porkers, 52s. to 54s.; medium bacon, 56s. to 58s.; heavier, 50s. to 54s.; sows, 34s. to 38s.; slips, 20s. to 27s. 6d. each, and bonhams, 10s. to 20s.

STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW.

Owing to the dislocation of the railway services a smaller number of cattle was forward for Thursday's sale. The new scale of British tariffs affected the trade adversely, and buyers were more cautious. Nevertheless, there was little or no change in values of forward-conditioned cattle, but rough and secondary sorts met a quiet trade at reduced prices. Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford crosses made from 24/- to 32/- per cwt., horned and polled bullocks and heifers from 22/- to 28/6 per cwt.

MESSRS. GANLY AND SONS.

Entries were again very large, and included many consignments of well-bred Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford crosses from the best store-raising districts. There was a good attendance of both home and cross-Channel buyers, and the majority of the cattle being of a suitable description they met a ready sale at in or about last week's prices. Some lots of secondary and thinner sorts were difficult to place. The feature of the sale was a grand show of 71 choice Hereford cross heifers, the property of George Hammond, which were much admired, and realised the following prices: £12 10/-, £11 5/-, £10 17/6, £10 7/6, £9 10/- and £8 15/-, and the live-weight quotations were from 32/- to 29/- per cwt. A pen of very nice A.-A. bullocks, the property of Joseph McKenna, sold at £11, were 32/- per cwt. Other quotations, horned and polled bullocks 24/- to 26/6 per cwt., shorthorn heifers 25/- to 29/- per cwt., Aberdeen-Angus crosses 28/- to 31/- per cwt.
